Hughes' Queries Put to Brewster

WASHINGTON, Aug. 7 (AP)—Howard Hughes shouted today that testimony of Senator Brewster (R.) of Maine before the Senate war investigating committee "is a pack of lies and I can tear it apart if I am allowed to cross-question him. The lanky Hollywood film producer and flier hurled that declaration at Brewster as he took the stand for a second day in the committee's inquiry into Hughes' $40,000,000 wartime aircraft contracts.

Chairman Ferguson (R.) of Michigan, presiding at the hearing under control of a subcommittee, demanded first of Hughes and then of Brewster if they had any written questions ready for each other. Hughes, having some difficulty understanding Ferguson, asked his attorney, Tom Slack, what had been said.

Then Hughes asked to make a statement to "clarify my position."

Ferguson cut him, saying that under rules of the subcommittee question must be submitted in advance and in writing.

"PACK OF LIES"

Hughes flushed. He reached into an envelope and pulled out several long sheets of writing.

"I want to mek it very clear these are not all," Hughes began. "Furthermore the testimony yesterday of Senator Brewster is a pack of lies and I can tear it apart if I can be allowed to cross question him."

In separate appearance on the witness stand yesterday, Hughes charged and Brewster denied that the Maine Senator once offered "in so many words" to call off the investigation of the plane contracts if Hughes would agree to a merger of Trans World Airlines with Pan American Airways.

Hughes holds a controlling interest in TWA.

After Hughes' outburst, Brewster waived any right to cross-examine the plane manufacturer.

"As far as I am concerned, I am willing to let the matter rest with the subcommittee," the Senator said.

Hughes and Ferguson argued for about five minutes over the course the hearing should take.

ORDERS AUDIENCE OUT

Hughes contended that he could not submit all his questions, to be put to Brewster by the committee? in writing in advance because one question would be predicated on the answer to the preceding one.

The audience, packing the Senate caucus room, applauded when Hughes demanded to know whether Ferguson would submit in advance to him (Hughes) any written questions Brewster supplied.

Banging on the table, Ferguson ordered the room cleared of spectators.

A tall youth, wearing a sweater, jumped up in the audience. He spoke out clearly:

"I speak for the audience."

Then, on its behalf, he promised that those attending the hearing would remain quiet.

"We want to hear this as American citizens," he declared.

The young man said he was Leonard Small, of Brooklyn, N. Y., a student at George Washington University here.

Capitol police, moving forward to carry out Ferguson's instructions to clear the room, hesitated. One of them said to Small, "You won't speak for anyone," and then moved forward — apparently to oust Small first of all.

COUNTERMANDS ORDER

Ferguson intervened.

"Don't put him out for saying he is an American citizen," he said.

Then Ferguson said he was relying on Small's promise the audience would remain quiet and recalled his instructions for police to clear the room.

On the point of written questions, this was the situation:

Ferguson last night had asked both Brewster and Hughes to submit their questions in writing this morning, and had called a subcommittee meeting prior to the hearing to consider them.

No questions from either party were submitted, he said:

When the hearings convened, Ferguson told Hughes:

"The subcommittee did meet, and I will now ask, are there any questions on your part, Mr. Hughes?"

"Sen. Brewster—excuse me, Sen. Ferguson," Hughes said, "may I make a brief statement?"

"No," Ferguson shot back. "Do you have any questions in writing which you desire the subcommittee to ask Sen. Brewster?"

"I have, yes, one question I will submit to start with," Hughes said. "It would be im-

Hitchhikers Held in Looting Of Swank Haverhill Homes

HAVERHILL, Aug. 7—Arrested by State Troopers of the Andover barracks while hitchhiking to Boston on the Andover high way, two local men believed responsible for looting swank homes in the exclusive High land section of this city of jewelry and clothing valued at more than $10,000 faced arraignment in district court here today on burglary charges.

Booked by the State Police before being brought here on charges of breaking and entering and larceny, the two gave the names of Herbert W. Peters, 30, and John S. Hanson, 21, both of Cedar st., this city.

Troopers Daniel Murphy and William Knightly were patrolling Route 28 in Andover when their suspicions were aroused when they came upon the two hitchhikers, one lugging a portable typewriter and the other carrying a pair of binoculars.

Taken to the state barracks for questioning, officials said the men admitted several of the Haverhill breaks. When searched, one of the accused, according to police, had 14 diamonds in his possession that had been removed from a bracelet, and the other a diamond ring hidden in one of his shoes.

A search by Haverhill inspectors at the home of Peters disclosed three packing cases filled with jewelry and men's and women's apparel, they said. Police also recovered a 38-caliber revolver and a 22-caliber pistol.

The pair admitted, according to police, that they removed diamonds from rings, pins and other articles of jewelry and sold them in Lawrence, Haverhill and Boston.

Plane Dives Down Chimney, 4 Dead

Four North Shore socialites, including a father and his two daughters, plunged to a fiery death today when their chartered plane crash-dropped into the blazing 35-foot gas fume chimney of the Colonial Beacon Oil Co. in Everett. The victims were the pilot, John Nelson Borland Pell, 33, of Ipswich; Thomas P. Mandell, 46, of Dodge st., Beverly, and his daughters, Ann, 20, and Harriot, 19.

J. NELSON PELL, 33

HARRIOT MANDELL, 19

THOMAS P. MANDELL, 56

Mandell was an official of the Carrier-Mandell Air Conditioning Corp. His family, which owned and published the Boston Evening Transcript for more than a half-century, is among the best known on the North Shore.

POST-DEB ANN MANDELL

Aeronautics investigators said the pilot, his fuel supply running low, apparently mistook the oil plant lights for Logan airport and the fog-shrouded reflection of a nearby pond as a runway.

Eyewitnesses reported the bright red plane circled the area, then came in with motor conked at less than 100 feet over the heads of four workmen, skimming precariously close to huge stills and tanks filled with hundreds of thousands of gallons of high-test gasoline, oil, naphtha, benzine and tar.

BURSTS INTO FLAMES

The propeller missed the chimney, but the monoplane's undercarriage crashed the top and the plane clung to the stack momentarily like a bird on a twig. Then, ignited by a belch from the yawning cauldron, it burst into flames and dropped into the hot interior of the great brick cylinder.

Charred remains of the socially-prominent victims, dragged from the smouldering "field burner" with poles and hooks, were identified from a charter record at the Beverly Airport, where the four had taken off yesterday for a flight to Montreal to visit Mandell's eldest daughter, Mrs. Cyril Craig.

The plane's shattered motor fell outside the chimney. Most of the remainder plunged with the occupants into the flaming interior. The body of one girl fell between the inner and outer walls of the cylinder; the others into the inner cauldron where piped waste gas was burning.

PILOT A SOCIALITE

Pell, the pilot, member of a socially prominent Westbury, L. I., N. Y., family, was an experienced flier. He was a transport pilot with Trans-World Airlines and with the Pennsylvania Central Airlines. A 1936 Harvard graduate, he once flew for the China National Airways and joined the North Atlantic Airways at Beverly two months ago to take charge of operations.

He is survived by his wife and son. Mrs. Pell, the former Nancy Blagden, received the tragic news at the Hamilton home of a friend, E. P. Motley. The Pells had been living at the Myopia Hunt Club until last week when they purchased a new home in Ipswich.

Pell's brother, Clarence Pell, Jr., was notified of the crash at his summer place in Edgartown.

Mandell was the son of George S. Mandell, former publisher of the old Boston Transcript. The

'Twixt Tax, Cops Bookies Can't Win

Bookmakers are in the middle in Massachusetts today with one branch of the government trying to put them out of business while another condones their operations, deriving revenue from their illicit earnings while assuring them of immunity from exposure.

The conflict in the laws was disclosed by State Tax Comr. Henry F. Long, who made no bones of the fact that his department was perfectly willing to allow bookies to operate just so long as they didn't forget to turn over the income tax on their earnings to the State.

COULD JAIL LONG

So, long said, that even while the State police are sworn to wipe out illegal gambling operations, his department must wink an eye and collect income taxes from the bookies, at the same time guaranteeing them protection against exposure.

As a matter of fact, Long added, he could be sent to jail himself if he ever revealed any information contained in an income tax return. That is right in the law books.

Long would like to see bookmaking for off-track betting legalized in the State. It would make his work much easier and assure the State of a large revenue.

He is supported in this by Atty. Gen. Barnes, who tried unsuccessfully to have such a measure passed by the 1946 Legislature.

CHURCH, TRACK BEAT BILL

A similar measure, sponsored this year by Rep. John W. Vaughan of Belmont, was killed in the House.

At the time the Vaughan measure was filed, Barnes declared himself as still in favor of legalizing bookmaking but pointed out that racing interests and the churches had defeated his bill and probably would do the same to the Vaughan bill.

Meanwhile, Police Com. Thomas J. Sullivan's crackdown on bookies in Boston failed to attract much interest in the office of Dist. Atty. William J. Foley.

Foley declined to give his views on Sullivan's complaint that the courts should jail bookies instead of letting them off with fines. The prosecutor commented, however:

"Just because a man is a bookie doesn't mean you must take him out and shoot him."

JUST WANTS TAXES

Long, whose office has just announced a crackdown on bookies in the Connecticut Valley area, stated in effect that he was merely putting the pressure on them to pay their state taxes.

The commissioner said bookies in Boston have "confidence that I'll keep a discreet silence about their identity" and that they in return will keep paying their 3 per cent tax 'knowing we'd never

Eisler Faces Quiz On Tie With World Communist Gang

By LILLIAN GREENWALD

WASHINGTON, Aug. 7 (INS)—Gerhart Eisler, alleged No. 1 Soviet agent in the United States, today faced searching cross-examination on his connections with organized world Communism.

Eisler was slated to take the witness stand for the fourth day to defend himself against the United States' charge that he gave false information in an exit visa application filed with the State Dept. in September, 1945.

Prosecuting Atty. William Hitz took over the witness yesterday afternoon, after he had spent two solid days under questioning by his own lawyers.

Eisler said he felt the United States had no moral right to subject him, a refugee exhausted by years in concentration camps and desiring only to reach a haven offered by the Mexican government, to such trouble as filling out questionnaires.

He denied, however, that he had any ill-feeling toward the American government, commenting:

"I was very much in sympathy with Franklin Delano Roosevelt despite his not being a Communist. I trusted him."

Eisler added that he did not trust "those little officials," the "bureaucrats" who made him answer questionnaires and file applications.

The defendant was caught off base by Hitz' inquiries on his activities as an air raid warden in New York City during the recent war years.

Hitz pointed out that his application for a post as warden bore the information that he was a naturalized citizen.

Eisler replied that "there must have been some mistake" since his status was that of enemy alien.

Blue Cross $9 Day Limit Ruling Delayed

No decision on the petition of the Blue Cross to limit its payment of hospitalization costs for 2,000,000 subscribers to $9 a day will be made until Monday at the earliest, the State Department of Insurance announced today.

A spokesman said Deputy Joseph S. O'Leary, charged with consideration of such petitions, was out of town until then. Charles F. J. Harrington, head of the department, could not be reached.

The spokesman was unable to state whether a public hearing would be held.

The Blue Cross proposal would affect semi-private patients only, since costs for ward patients are lower than the projected $9-a-day maximum. Semi-private patients would be required to pay the difference between the proposed maximum and the actual charge made by the mmber hospital.

H. Proctor Redd, Blue Cross public relations director, said 156 hospitals holding contracts with the Blue Cross have been notified that until an adjustment was made, the organization could only pay 90 cents on the dollar.

However, he hastened to add:

"This is simply an emergency measure and the hospitals will be paid the difference out of surplus funds."

The petition was dictated, he said, by the fact that the organization's resources had been so taxed by increased hospitalization costs that its reserve has dwindled from $3,000,000 to little more than $1,000,000.

An increase in Blue Cross rates was approved by the insurance department last June. The 2,000,000 subscribers represent nearly half the population of the State.

R. F. Cahalane, executive director of Massachusetts Hospital Service, parent organization of the Blue Cross, said:

"The inflationary trends in hospital costs have proved to be as unpredictable as have costs in other lines. Since March, 59 hospitals have notified Blue Cross of further increases in charges. Many others are now planning additional increases."

The $9 maximum would not affect other services guaranteed by the organization.

Joy-Riders Steal Plane, Fly an Hour

SPRINGFIELD, Aug. 7—Aerial joy riders broke into the hangar of Airman Tech, a school for instruction on plane engines, at Springfield Airport during the night and took an AT-6 plane for an hour's ride, then returned it damaged to the front of the hangar.

Philip E. Taft, head of the school, said one wing tip and the riding lights of the plane had been damaged and estimated repairs would cost $150. He said the joy-riders also had punched a hole in the wing of another plane, a PT-19, parked in the hangar.

The joy riding plane was stocked with 190 gallons of gasoline when the hangar was locked for the night. With 20 gallons used, Taft estimated the plane had been in the air for an hour.

Jury Told Suspects Gay After Overell Death Blast

By ADELA ROGERS ST. JOHNS
Special to the Boston Evening American

SANTA ANA, Cal., Aug. 7—Have you ever been in a house of death in those days before the funeral? If you have, you know the strange quiet that descends, the avoidance of those places where a few hours ago some dear loved one lived and breathed, the hurts that come when you see a familiar garment, the way you put off those rearrangements that must come.

You know the tear-stained faces, the hushed talk and broken voices, the sudden memories inanimate things bring back that are hardly to be borne.

Maybe you know the prayers that are said for those who are just crossing over, walking through the valley of that shadow called death and up and out on the other side.

We know now how those days were spent in the Overell house after death struck its master and mistress aboard the Mary E. Mrs. Herbert Van Zwoll, their next door neighbor, testified to them on the witness stand.

It was 3 o'clock Sunday morning when Beulah Louise Overell returned to her parents' home in Flintridge knowing they were dead.

On Monday night Mrs. Van Zwoll went over, at Beulah Louise Overell's request, to spend the night. There she found Beulah Louise—as she calls her—and Bud Gollum making up a bed for her.

SEEMED HAPPY

With every objection in the book hurled at her, and Judge Morrison attempting to help her from the bench, the word "happy" to describe Bud and Beulah Louise was so strong in Mrs. Van Zwoll's memory track that she kept using it over and over, helplessly. She kept saying—they looked happy, they were happy, they seemed happy.

That being by legal procedure the conclusion of the witness. It was stricken out and at last Mrs. Van Zwoll said they were pleasant, their manner was pleasant, they were laughing.

On Wednesday morning when she got up, Mrs. Van Zwoll saw Beulah Louise and Bud Gollum's sister and Bud Gollum in the upstairs hall. Bud, quite master of the house now, took the keys from his pockets and went into Mr. and Mrs. Overell's bedroom.

PAWING IN DRAWERS

Again the defense started a barrage of objections. To Mrs. Van Zwoll, a dignified lady in black with a soft white hat over her silvery hair, the world seemed ransacked. She saw Bud Gollum, she said, ransacking all the drawers in the Overells' bedroom. But ransacked, too, is a word calling for a conclusion of the witness, and so at the court's order Mrs. Van Zwoll substituted that Bud was opening all the drawers and sticking his hand in them.

That morning, 48 hours after its mistress had died, the room looked as the pictures showed, like a junk shop.

ADMITS THEFT—Marion Bernard, 18, of Roxbury, admitted in Roxbury district court that she stole $250 in money orders sent to her aunt, Mrs. Eva Wallace, by the woman's son from the South Pacific. The girl was ordered held in $2500 double surety for trial.

A policeman was fatally wounded in the exchange of bullets.

Maine Couple Wait Trial in Lure Killing

In the aftermath of a bizarre courtroom scene in a funeral parlor in Truckee, Cal., Joseph L. Hardy, Jr., 24, and his bride, Lois Hunt Hardy, 22, of Kittery, Me., were in jail today awaiting trial next month on a murder charge.

Because of heightened interest, the couple's arraignment in the little California town was staged in the biggest room available, which proved to be the front room of a funeral home.

Lois, smiling graciously at witnesses and Justice of the Peace R. N. Little, held her husband's hand and kept up a running fire of jokes during the session.

Hardy, showing his first signs of nervousness as his lips quivered occasionally, smiled back at her. Both waived rights to counsel and the customary delay between arraignment and preliminary hearing. They also declined to cross-examine witnesses or argue against testimony.

Hardy told reporters:

"We will make no defense of any kind in Superior Court. We plan to plead guilty."

Spectators jammed the parlor, and those unable to get inside leaned against coffins in an anteroom adjoining the impromptu courtroom. Lois was wearing a new silk blouse purchased for her by police in Las Vegas, Nev.

The two were captured there following the slaying of James W. McLain, 48, of Burbank, Cal.

69---Death Heat Wave Broken

By the Associated Press

Thundershowers and cooling breezes cut further into the Midwest's worst heat wave of the year today after deaths from the four days of 100-degree temperatures had risen to at least 69.

"The heat wave is definitely broken at Chicago and all points north and west and is being broken eastward," the Weather Bureau said after a shower at Chicago early today tumbled the mercury from 81 to 72 within a few minutes.

Elsewhere, though, the forecaster said continued high temperatures could be expected today, particularly from southeastern Michigan southward through Indiana, across southern Illinois and throughout the southern plains States.

"I'm an old man; I pick fruit all day and load trucks. I can't stand it. Actually, I suppose I could like the work, but those college boys jeer at me all day long. They call me Ding Dong Daddy of the D-car line. I can't stand the humiliation."

Wife Charges Downs Jockey Played Field

NEW YORK, Aug. 7—Jockey Saul Magath failed to confine his attention to fillies of the race track, his wife, blonde and beautiful Baby Lake, specialty dancer at New York's Latin Quarter, indicated in a divorce complaint today in New York Supreme Court.

In fact, her complaint charged, it was her own best girl friend with whom she trapped him in a compromising position in a New York hotel last June just after he had returned from riding at the last Suffolk Downs meeting.

She said she and the 24-year-old jockey from Montreal were married in Miami, Fla., in January, 1945, and separated a year ago. They have a baby daughter, Adrianne.

She claimed he came to her hotel in New York last June, after returning from Suffolk Downs, and demanded to be allowed to see her child. She finally permitted him to come in and kiss the child and he left.

But the next night, she said, he was hanging around the hotel again so she took the baby and went to her mother's home in West 91st st.

BECOMES SUSPICIOUS

Later that evening, she said, she received a telephone call from her best friend, named only as "Irene," who told her that her husband was furious and that she had better stay away from the hotel for a few days. "Irene," incidentally, lived in the same hotel.

Baby became suspicious and she and her mother, Mrs. Lani Heaston, went to the hotel.

"Listening outside Irene's door," Baby related, "we heard the whispered voices of a man and woman and I recognized the man's voice as that of my husband.

"We decided to get a third person and I got another girl friend to come to the room with us. We knocked on the door and heard a flurry of activity inside. The door opened a little way and Irene poked her head out.

"My girl friend threw her weight against the door and opened it wide.

"Irene was in her slip. Her hair was disarranged and lipstick was smeared over her face. She was flustered and spoke incoherently.

"I saw my husband jumping out of the bed. He scrambled into his trousers and tried to hide behind a screen. I walked out and slammed the door."

She asked for a diverce, custody of the child and an order that Magath pay for the child's support. She doesn't care about alimony for herself, asserting that she is self-supporting.

TO WED—Ann Dvorak, Hollywood actress who is due to arrive in Boston next week to participate in the mock trial of "The Long Night" at Symphony Hall, will become the bride of Igor de Navratsky, an actor whom she met in Paris.

SPCA Fires Dog-Torturing Aide

Special to the Boston Evening American

JERSEY CITY, N. J., Aug. 7—As 35 children walked around their neighborhood wearing black armbands and carrying picket signs, the Jersey City SPCA today announced it had fired a dogcatcher accused of publicly torturing a dog to death.

Elsie Mollers, chief clerk of the Jersey City SPCA, said Clarence Matson had been discharged for maltreating the animal. She said:

"He had only been employed by us for two months and wasn't supposed to handle dogs at all." . . .

The children, among them two little girls, who fainted in horror at the sight, said Matson had stuffed a rubber ball into the mouth of the dog and hanged it by a noose to the side of a truck for 30 minutes last Monday afternoon.

The dog was a mongrel, mostly Chow, called Brownie by the children.

It wandered into the neighborhood two years ago and promptly became the neighborhood pet.

Although it had no official residence, Brownie would whine on back porches and always receive water and food, although the animal never went inside.

As usual, the dog on Monday afternoon was trying to keep cool by lying under a parked truck.

The children said Matson drove up in the SPCA wagon and asked them to persuade the dog to come out into the open.

"We are going to give the dog a bath and a good home," the children said Matson told them.

When a six-year-old coaxed Brownie out, the children said, Matson grabbed him, stuffed a rubber ball in his mouth, pulled a noose around his throat and suspended the struggling animal from a door handle of the truck.

The children screamed and cried.

Although the children thought their pet dead when Matson finally cut him down and took him away, Miss Mollers said the creature was still barely alive when brought into the pound.

"But he was so far gone then we put him out of his misery."

Fall River Strike Peace Hope Rises

FALL RIVER, Aug. 7—Hopes for settlement of the nine-day-old strike of 1400 skilled textile workers, which has thrown 6000 other workers out of employment and threatens to idle another 8000, rose today over a move by Chairman Charles H. Cole of the State Board of Conciliation and Arbitration.

After a meeting with mill operators and union heads, Cole asked the management if there was any basis on which they could agree to arbitration.

They agreed throuhg a spokesman to give him a reply at a conference late today. If arbitration is agreed to by both sides, the strikers are expected to return to work at once.

Quit Spare Jobs Order Angers Police in Quincy

Resentment flared in the Quincy police dept. today over an order issued by Chief John J. Avery, forbidding members of the force from holding spare-time jobs and directing them to devote their time exclusively to police duties.

Ranking officers and patrolmen alike were reported openly angered at the order, said to affect more than half of the 125-man force who were holding part-time jobs as taxi drivers, painters, plasterers, carpenters and electricians. All were directed to give up these jobs immediately.

Reports were current that an organized protest may be carried to Mayor Charles A. Ross, with a request that the drastic order be revoked.

Meanwhile, Chief Avery was expected to concern himself today over the mysterious disappearance of the order before it could be read at all rollcalls.

It was missing last night when several division commanders were ready to read it to their respective details. Search for the document was started, but early today officials had been unable to trace it.

The police chief, in his order, made an exception of paid police details outside of regular duties. It urged members of the force to obtain sufficient rest "in order to be in the best of health at all times."

The chief pointed to hundreds of cases of veterans who were idle and seeking employment to obtain money for food, clothing and rent.

The order advises: "Let us extend to them the chance they desire to live and work and support their families. The war it over."

PHILADELPHIA, Aug. 7 (AP)—An impatient passenger took over a stalled bus crowded with passengers, drove it three miles across the city and abandoned it with its riders aboard.

The unidentified driver started the bus, which had broken down, while its regular driver, Pasquale Juliano, went to a telephone to call for a repair truck. As Juliano headed back to the bus, it started off in a burst of speed with about 40 homeward bound passengers.

Newspaper's Pension Fund Buys Famous Cafe Chain

SPRINGFIELD, Aug. 7—The Valley Trust Co. of Springfield, which invests the pension fund of Springfield newspaper employes, has obtained a controlling interest in New York's famed Longchams restaurant chain, it was revealed today.

The nine restaurants in the chain, formerly owned by Henri Fornow, Inc., but it was disclosed today that the bulk of the money for the purchase came from the Valley Trust Co.

In New York, it was announced that the State Liquor Authority also had approved the application of Fornow, Inc., for liquor licenses for the chain.

CONTROL ANOTHER CHAIN

Liquor licenses for the restaurants were cancelled last December on the ground they had sold liquor on credit. This action followed Lustig's conviction on charges of Federal income tax evasion.

It was understood that in the sale of Lustig's interest to the Fornow Corporation, payment of about $3000 due to the Federal government from him was a prerequisite to the restoration of the liquor license for the restaurants. Fornow counsel said payment would be made today.

Heading the new operating group is Theodore T. Mets, of Short Hills, N. J., who since 1937 has been president of the Exchange Buffet chain of restaurants in New York, in which the Valley Trust Co. has a 60 per cent interest.

SET UP BY BOWLES

The pension fund, which the Valley Trust Co. invests, was set up in 1923 by Sherman Bowles, publisher of the four newspapers of the city. The original amount contributed by Bowles is not known although it is believed to have been approximately the same as the weekly payroll of the four papers over a six-month period.

Under judicious investments by the Valley Trust Co. during the past 24 years, the fund has risen to in excess of $3,000,000.

Officers of the Valley Trust Co. are listed as Blanche Gallagher, of Hartford, Ct., president; Jules Stolz, employed in the advertising department of the Springfield newspapers, treasurer. and Mary Gallagher, secretary to Publisher Bowles, secretary.

75 P. C. PAY PENSION

In addition to investments in the Longchamps and Exchnage Buffet chains, the Valley Trust has interest in an $8,000,000 building in Wall St., New York, and in numerous industrial concerns.

Springfield's four papers, which employe 500 persons, were closed last September by a strike. Publisher Bowles resumed publication of two of them, the Morning Union and the Evening News, last April. The mornnig Republican and the evennig Union still are not operating.

Employes of the papers have never made any contribution to the pension fund. Striking employes lost all benefits they would have received under the fund.

By its operation, eligible employes may be pensioned at three-quarter pay after they reach the age of 60 or at hte discretion of the trustees of the fund.

Trapped in Lift, Newsie Shouts Way to Freedom

Trapped in a self-operating elevator that stalled between the second and third floors of a Kilsyth rd., Brighton, apartment building today, a 12-year-old newsboy brought his best headline-shouting technique into play and occupants called firemen to the rescue.

True to the anonymity seeking code of his great profession, the lad refused to identify himself to firemen.

Killer Suspect Parole Lashed

FALL RIVER, Aug. 7—With Charles McGarty, 25, lodged in jail awaiting a district court hearing next Wednesday on charges he killed his niece, Theresa LaFleur, 8, a demand for investigation of his release from Concord Reformatory was voiced by Atty. Dist. Atty J. Edward Lajoie.

McGarty was freed last May after serving only 11 months of three concurrent five-year sentences for armed robbery, burglary and larceny. Normally, he would not have been eligible for parole until November.

Investigation of the death continued, with pathologists seeking evidence the girl might have been criminally attacked.

Funeral services for Theresa will be held tomorrow, with a requiem mass in Immaculate Conception Church at 9 a. m.

Search for Man Left Tied to Boat

NORTHEAST, Pa., Aug. 7 (AP)—Lake Erie is being searched from the air and surface today for a 35-year-old Carnegie, Pa., businessman left lashed to a small capsized motorboat by a friend who swam nine miles to shore.

The boat was found five miles off shore without any trace of Harold Johnson. His fishing companion, Thomas Cook, 35, of Pittsburgh, identified the craft as that to which he had lashed Johnson, a poor swimmer, before battling his way through stormy weather and rough water for aid.

Cook said that in addition to tieing Johnson to the boat, he placed him in a life jacket, donning a second jacket himself. More than nine hours were required to reach shore, Cook said.

Sunday Liquor Sale Ban Urged

BALTIMORE, Aug. 7 (AP)—The Catholic Total Abstinence Union of America today urged enactment of "all laws that would restrict the sale of liquor on Sunday."

The union, closing its 75th annual convention, also resolved to condemn "a subtle advertising campaign which presents to the American public the attractiveness and advisability of drinking intoxicating liquors."

Rev. John W. Keogh of Philadelphia was re-elected president.

Others re-elected were: Thomas H. Nolan, Pittsfield, Mass., first vice president; Mrs. Mary B. Finan, Chicago, second vice president; Mrs. Louise M. Ryan, Malden, Mass., third vice president; Henry J. Healey, Torrington, Ct., treasurer; John A. Pfister, Sharon Hill, Pa., general secretary.

Six Air Vets Plan World "Graybeards Flight"

MIAMI BEACH, Fla., Aug. 7 (AP)—Six veteran American aviators, noted for long distance and over-water hops a decade or more ago, today made plans for a "graybeards' flight" around the world.

Ralph E. Adams, Cloyd P. Clevenger, Erroll Boyd, Clyde Pangborn, M. K. Lee and Harry P. Connor said the takeoff would probably be from New York or Miami in the late winner or early spring. Connor was Howard Hughes' navigator on his recent world flight.

"Red Tide" of Dead Fish Breaks Up Off Florida

CLEARWATER, Fla., Aug. 7 (AP)—The "red tide" with its long trail of fish victims in the Gulf of Mexico continued today its disintegration several miles off shore.

Observers said one big mass was breaking up into smaller segments about 20 miles northwest of Clearwater Beach. Another huge mass of dead fish broke apart eight miles off Indian Rocks Beach.

'DISCS' GROW UP

PHILADELPHIA, Aug. 7 (INS)—The "flying saucers" which plagued the nation for weeks appear to have grown up.

Numerous Philadelphians reported today that objects resembling "large plates" were seen racing across the sky last night.

Some of the reports said the objects left a "hissing sound" in their wake. The "plates" were said to be "bluish white."

Astronomers, however, said they hadn't seen anything unusual.

Deported or Not, Girl to Be Bride

PHILADELPHIA, Aug. 7 (AP)—A Portland, Ore., merchant seaman is planning to marry the German girl he smuggled into this country whether she is deported or not.

Walter Le Roy Strange, 38-year-old ship's cook and baker, declared in Federal court yesterday that "I certainly do" want to wed 24-year-old Francesca Vanden-Bruch, former member of the German Army Women's Auxiliary Corps he has admitted bringing into this country illegally by dressing her in dungarees and hiding her in his cabin.

Asked what action he would take if Francesca is sent back to Germany, Strange replied:

"I'll go back for her later and try to get her back here legally."

The court deferred sentence to await a report from immigration authorities who are holding Francesca for deportation.

AIR COLLISION KILLS THREE

LONDON, Aug. 7 (AP)—Conservatives and Left Wing Laborites found themselves in the same camp today in opposition to Prime Minister Attlee's new program to avert economic disaster in Great Britain—calling mainly for sharp cuts in imports and increases in production for export.

The leftwingers were discontented because the announced reduction in Britain's armed forces under the new plan would leave more than 1,000,000 men under arms by next spring—far more than the reduced number they've been advocating ever since they attacked Foreign Sec. Bevin's foreign policy last November.

The Conservative opposition blasted the Atlee program on the ground that it was "too little, too late." They made three specific points in their criticism:

1—They said the government was dealing with the crisis too hurriedly and too late.

2—They said the plan was not detailed enough.

3—They said the government had failed to give the country a full statement of the peril it faces.

Seven London newspapers predicted the Conservatives would vote against the government tonight on the adjournment motion under which the crisis debate was being held—such a step would constitute a protest without involving a vote of censure.

The Express said dissident Labs had called on Hugh Dalton, chancellor of the exchequer, for a post-midnight meeting and added that Dalton "will try to please these critics" when he speaks today.

Attlee told Britons to eat less food, less gasoline, less wood for new houses, less lights in the stores, fewer Hood movies, and longer hours of work.

Rifleman, Guilty In Woman's Death

HOLYOKE, Aug. 7—His name kept secret because of his age, a 14-year-old boy was under a two-year suspended sentence today for accidental death of Miss Mary Grady, 37, killed by a rifle bullet she walked along a street.

The boy was convicted of delinquency for Sgt. Jeremiah Coffey testified the defendant was shooting a .22 caliber rifle at birds and slug went wild and struck the victim behind the left ear.

Dentists Told How Lost Teeth Of Young Can Be Replanted

A child's tooth knocked completely out of its socket can be replanted and made to grow again if it is kept in good condition while out of the mouth, Dr. Joseph T. Hartsook of the University of Michigan told members of the American Dental Ass'n today.

In the fourth day of its five-day 88th annual meeting the association also heard an eminent dentist state that the condition of a youngster's first teeth may decide whether he grows up to be a dental beauty or an ugly duckling.

Still another dentist stressed the important role the profession must play in aiding surgeons to reconstruct shattered faces.

Hartsook said successful replanting of a child's tooth lost unnaturally depends on getting to the dentist as soon as possible. If the tooth is in good condition and the roots of adjacent teeth uninjured, he said, the replanted tooth will usually become firmly imbedded in two to four weeks.

Such replanting, he added, usually fails in adults.

Dr. Solomon N. Rosenstein of Columbia University's School of Dental and Oral Surgery said unnecessary loss of children's first teeth must be prevented to guard against malformations of permanent teeth. First teeth with deep cavities can be saved by so-called "pulp-capping," a highly successful method of saving teeth at any age.

The method has proved successful, he added, in 90 per cent of more than 1000 cass where tooth decay has penetrated the vital pulp of children's teeth.

In a paper on postsurgical prosthesis, Dr. Oscar Edward Beder, N. Y., advised young dentists to prepare for increasing calls for assistance from surgeons mending shattered heads and faces.

Officials Seek Identity Of Body on Island

NEW BEDFORD, Aug. 7—Authorities sought anew today to identify a body washed up on Naushon Island a week ago after Medical Examiner J. Ubalde Paquin announced it was the corpse of a middle aged man.

Previously the body was believed to be that of a young woman not over 25 years of age. No cause for the switch in description was forthcoming. It was reported the body bears no marks of violence, but no cause of death has yet been assigned.

Can Woman Author Be Happy as Wife?

The chances of a woman achieving success both as a best-selling writer and as a happily-married wife seem to be against her, at least, that is the verdict of those pessimists who point to the marital ups-and-downs of Kathleen Winsor, Ursula Parrott, Pearl Buck, Marjorie Kinnan Rawlings and Katharine Brush.

Ursula Trow discusses the personal problems of successful women authors, whose troubles often surpass those of their fictional heroines, in "Best Sellers and Matrimony," which will appear in Sunday's American Weekly, magazine issued with all editions of the Boston Sunday Advertiser.

In another American Weekly feature for Sunday, Dan Parker tells the poignant story of "Cloudier Bill" Smith of Dorchester, last Boston Evening American sports writer, whose devotion to racing was exceeded only by his love for his mother.

Warn 8 Night Clubs in State to Pay U. S. Tax

Federal agents were preparing today to crack down on night clubs and cafes in Boston and other Massachusetts cities, which have been withholding cabaret and social security taxes from the government, following a similar drive in Rhode Island.

Local action loomed in the wake of the padlocking of a swank night club in Providence, and threatened action against other delinquents who owe Uncle Sam a total of between $15,000 and $20,000 in unpaid taxes.

Dennis Delaney, collector of internal revenue here, disclosed that two Boston night spots and six others outside the city will be padlocked unless they pay up promptly.

Some owe the government cabaret taxes, some social security withholding taxes, and some both, Delaney declared.

Night club business has been bad in recent months, the collector said, and some managements, financially hard hit with heavy overhead, including high-priced entertainers, have been using the funds collected from patrons and employes for the government to "keep going."

A number of owners have been "called on the carpet" during that time, Delaney disclosed, and warned to turn the withheld funds over to the government or face the consequences.

In several instances where establishments showed signs of folding up, deputies were placed on the premises to take over tax money as it accrued.

CANOE CRUISE

OTTAWA, Aug. 7 (AP)—Otto Smith, 67, of Cripple Creek, Col., docked his 16-foot canoe here after paddling 4500 miles from Vancouver over the waterways used by early explorers and fur-traders.

Smith, looking fit and sunbronzed, started out last April "just for the fun of it," and doesn't plan to stop until he has pushed down the Hudson river later this month to New York.

W. C. Fields Widow's $241,225 Claim Rejected

LOS ANGELES, Aug. 7 (AP)—Notice of rejection of a $241,225 claim against the estate of Comedian W. C. Fields by his widow, Mrs. Harriet V. Fields, was filed in superior court by Magda Michael, executrix and longtime secretary for Fields.

Mrs. Fields, estranged for many years from the comedian, who died last Christmas Day, claimed the amount as community property.

Hughes Probe

possible to submit all my questions in advance, because each one would be predicated on the answer to the one preceding it."

Ferguson said he didn't want to get into a conflict, but "the committee must function" and it wanted to give both parties a fair opportunity to present their cases.

"Do you have any questions?" he repeated.

"Well, Senator, Hughes began "may I refer . . ."

Ferguson cut him off.

"No, we're not going to get this settled," he said. "Do you or do you not have any questions in writing?"

Hughes said he would submit some, and he started to ask, "Will it be understood I can follow with more questions as we agreed last night . . . ?"

"There will be no agreement," Ferguson interrupted.

FTC SUBMITS QUESTIONS

Hughes finally turned over to Ferguson a sheet of what he called "preliminary questions and by no means all."

While the plane builder sat fingering his mustache, Ferguson and the members of his subcommittee huddled over the questions.

Then Ferguson announced there were 20 questions and that the subcommittee had agreed all should be put to Brewster.

Ferguson called for Brewster to take the stand, but before the Senator could get there Hughes broke in to say that if the committee was going to "deny me the right of cross-examination," he wanted to offer additional questions. He announced yesterday he would have "200 to 500."

Ferguson said that if Hughes had any other questions he should submit them now."

"All right," Hughes replied. "But I want to say that this cannot be considered a cross examination when I am forced to submit my questions in advance. May I read you a part of yesterday's testimony?"

"No," Ferguson ruled. "Just submit your questions."

Hughes sent another sheaf of questions to Ferguson, and the Michigan senator asked.

"Is that all of them?"

Hughes replied in the negative and again demanded:

"How can anyone cross-examine if he is not allowed to predicate one question on the answer to another?"

He then asked a brief statement, and before Ferguson could stop him, Hughes declared that yesterday Ferguson had promised him the same privileges that Brewster would have. In view of this, Hughes continued, would Ferguson turn over to him (Hughes) in advance the question the committee intended to put to him (Hughes).

HUGHES APPLAUDED

The audience broke into loud applause and it was at this point that Ferguson ordered the room cleared, then changed his mind.

When the hubbub quieted, Brewster moved from the committee table to the witness'ss chair. His hands folded in front of him, he sat quietly while the subcommittee members—their heads close together—studied the additional sheaf of questions which Hughes had handed over.

As minutes ticked by, Hughes and Tom A. Slack, his attorney, conferred in whispers a few feet behind the Maine Senator. Slack suddenly hopped to his feet and complained that he could hear the questions as they were being read by Ferguson to his subcommittee colleagues. He declared that he was sure that Brewster could hear them too—in advance of their being directed to him in public.

This, Brewster denied.

In advance of his return to Capitol Hill today the California plane builder and movie maker labeled the Senator's denial "pretty weak."

He added in a radio broadcast last night that "just about everyone in the aviation industry recognizes that Brewster is lying" in saying that he never heard of the proposed merger of Pan American Airways and Trans World Airline before a talk with Hughes six months ago.

CHARGES DEAL OFFERED

During his 30-minute appearance as a witness Hughes charged that "in so many words" the Maine senator had proposed at a hotel luncheon here last February that the inquiry need go no further "if I agreed to merge the TWA with Pan-American and agreed to go along with the bill for a single overseas airline."

Hughes controls TWA. Brewster denied any connection with Pan-American.

Hughes said his aides found they couldn't "make an equitable transaction" with Juan Trippe, head of Pan-American, and he ordered them "to drop the matter there, at least for the time being."

Then, he said, Francis Flanagan, assistant committee counsel, arrived in California and began "acting very tough" about going into the Hughs' Co. records. Hughes testified:

"It was apparent to me from the timing it was the application of screws after my failure to accede to the wishes of Mr. Trippe."

Copr. 1947, King Features Syndicate Inc. World rights reserved.

"His Grace, the Baron of Wurtfensteing!"

Quickly taking the stand to reply under oath, Brewster denied that he ever had promised or acted to stall the committee's investigation, declaring that instead, he had determined to go through with it regardless of any personal consequences.

"Here is a fundamental issue," the balding Maine senator told his colleagues as Hughes sat slumped in a chair a few feet back of him.

"If a member of the Senate or of this committee is to be intimidated in this manner, then senatorial investigations may well end.

"No matter what may be the personal results so far as I am concerned, I cannot be intimidated by a campaign of this character.

"Let the chips fall where they may."

HAS 500 QUESTIONS

When Chairman Ferguson (R.) of Michigan, asked at the conclusion of Brewster's testimony whether Hughes had any questions, the plane manufacturer said he had between 200 and 500 but wanted more time to prepare them.

Ferguson told a reporter that as soon as the "side issues" raised in the argument between Brewster and Hughes have been cleared away, the committee wants to question Hughes about his contract for a 200-ton flying boat.

The committee heard yesterday, in the form of a memorandum prepared by its former counsel, George Meader, that on March 24 Flanagan reported from Los Angeles he was having trouble getting Hughes to turn over the expense accounts to investigators.

This was shortly after the time Hughes testified that Flanagan, a former FBI operative, arrived in California and "began getting tough."

Brewster produced various documents which he said show that at no time had he accelerated or retarded the committee's investigation.

Brewster said that demonstrated an effort was being made to trap him into a position where it could be said that he alone held the decision as to whether the inquiry should go on.

Hughes' first appearance yesterday in the jammed hearing room touched off a round of applause and so much picture-taking that it was five minutes before he could start on his testimony.

After saying he was happy to go into the charges he had made earlier concerning Brewster, Hughes repeated his contention that the senator made an offer to call off the entire investigation at a luncheon in Brewster's hotel apartment here last Feb. 12, after he had flown the senator to Morgantown, W. Va., and Columbus, O., to make Lincoln Day addresses.

Brewster later said he came to Washington from Kansas City, where he spent the week-end, because Hughes had telephoned him he was eager to leave Washington and promised to fly the lawmaker to his speaking engagements.

Brewster testified he invited Hughes to luncheon because of his "very kind courtesy" in flying him to Morgantown and Columbus. But as for any airlines merger, "I had not heard of it before," he declared.

TALKED TO TRIPPE

Hughes said he talked with Trippe about the proposed merger of TWA and Pan American but no terms ever were reached.

He added that he had become "exhausted fighting Mr. Trippe's political maneuvers in Washington" and suggested they get together, so Trippe went to the West Coast to see him.

"We had some considerable discussion, and I asked him what he would do about Sen. Brewster."

"He said Brewster was abroad somewhere, in Europe or Asia, but that he'd be back in a few days and Mr. Trippe would talk to him and try to get him to hold up this investigation and also delay hearings on the Community Airline Bill."

In denying flatly that he bargained with Hughes to call off the investigation, Brewster had termed this a "proposition that sounds more like Hollywood than Washington."

The Maine Senator declared it seemed "inconceivable to me that anyone could seriously contemplate that anyone who has been in public life as long as I have—in the State Legislature, as Governor, in the House and the Senate—could, on such short acquaintance with Hughes make so bald a proposition as he here describes.

"I can assure you that I never did."

Brewster's record of a telephone conversation between him and Hughes last March 3 showed that Brewster did refer to a possible merger of TWA and Pan American. But there was no mention of any offer to call off the current investigation.

In the record of the phone call, Hughes was quoted as saying the merger rumor had been denied "because that put the whole TWA organization in a spin, as you can well imagine."

44 ways To get "Something for Nothing"

The railroads have received 44 "rules" demands from the leaders of the operating unions, representing engineers, firemen, conductors, trainmen and switchmen. They say they are seeking only changes in working conditions—NOT a wage increase.

More Money For Less Work

But what kind of rules are being asked for? Twenty-eight of them would compel railroads to pay more money for the same, or less work; 7 would require additional and unnecessary men to do the same work; the rest would bring about changes in operating practices at increased cost.

For Instance:

The Union leaders demand additional train and engine crews on Diesel-powered trains —one full crew for every power unit in the locomotive. A freight train hauled by a 4-unit Diesel would have to carry 4 engineers, 4 firemen, 4 conductors, and at least 8 brakemen, or a total of 20 men instead of 5.

"Made Work"—Sheer Waste

The Union leaders demand that full-length freight trains be cut to about half their length, even though such trains are most efficient for low-cost service to you. This rule would call for twice as many locomotives, would double the number of trains, and make accidents more likely.

Additional equipment, yards, and other facilities required to take care of these short trains would cost hundreds of millions. What the Union leaders really want is to make more jobs.

The Union leaders demand that when a crew in one class of service perform incidental service of another class, they will be paid not less than a day's pay for each class, even though all service is performed as a part of the same day's work. The crew would get at least two days' pay for one day's work.

The Union leaders demand that the present basic day for passenger conductors and trainmen be reduced from 150 to 100 miles, which would have the effect of increasing their pay 50%. Such a run often takes only two or three hours!

You Can't Afford This Waste

Demands like these are against the interests of the whole American people, who depend on railroad service for nearly everything they eat, wear and use.

These rules would cost A BILLION DOLLARS annually—a gigantic waste which neither the railroads nor the country can afford.

Railroad workers are good citizens and good employes, with pride in their calling. Their record during the war was outstanding. We do not believe they fully understand the "featherbed" rules which the Union leaders are demanding. We do not believe they understand the harmful results which these rules would have to the railroad industry, to the millions of men and women dependent on railroads for their livelihood, and to the shipping and consuming public.

The great strength of America is in production—an honest day's work for an honest day's pay.

For only through greater production can we hope to stop the steady upward surge of living costs.

Surely, if ever there was a time in our history when we needed to work, not waste, this is it.

THE FEDERAL ROAD PLAN

FOURTEEN YEARS AGO—when the Federal Government was financing an orgy of boondoggling schemes, along with a considerable number of commendable projects—the Hearst newspapers suggested that a substantial portion of the money that was being spent should be invested in a system of Federal highways.

The Federal Works Agency has now announced a program along this line.

The Federal Agency proposes to "criss-cross" the nation with 37,681 miles of four-lane express highways.

Much of the work has actually already been done.

There are long stretches of express highways in almost every section which need only to be linked together and, where necessary, widened to conform to the Federal plan of traffic lanes 12 feet wide in a 250-foot right of way.

Construction is expected to require from 15 to 20 years and costs are to be shared equally by States and the Federal government, in accordance with existing policy.

The Hearst newspapers began their advocacy of a Federal highway system with an editorial letter written by Mr. William Randolph Hearst which was published on September 20, 1933.

Mr. Hearst said:

"It seems to me that one of the most beneficial projects to the nation as a whole is the completion of at least three great highways from the Atlantic to the Pacific.

"Highways exist but they are not complete. They are interrupted here and there by considerable stretches of very bad road.

"Consequently the use of these highways is not as universal, not as alluring as it would be if the highways were perfected.

"The benefit of these great highways when perfected would be many-sided.

"It would not only benefit in practical commercial ways the States and communities through which they pass but it would lead myriads of citizens into taking automobile trips in their own country and into becoming familiar with what are to them distant parts of our country.

"It would be educational and inspirational.

"It would make them better Americans.

"In addition to that it would keep much money at home that is now spent in foreign travel.

"And finally, these highways would provide not only avenues for business and pleasure in times of peace but they would be of great value in times of possible hostile invasion when the railroads would be glutted with transportation and when these highways could be used for the overflow and for the movement of defensive troops.

"All these purposes make the completion of the highways, I think, a patriotic project."

All State and local governments—our own somewhat hesitant and reluctant Massachusetts government not excluded—should cooperate completely with the Federal authorities in this progressive development of the country.

FAULTY LAW

THE STATE Legislature, says Judge Eisenstadt of the Roxbury Court, should clear up an ambiguity in the law which requires railroads to put up fences to protect cattle, but does not specifically afford the same protection to children.

It cannot be that the gentlemen who write our laws nowadays regard little boys and girls as more expendable than cows and horses. It is more probable that they have never studied the law in question sufficiently to discover its inadequacies.

Legislators are busy people who are usually so engrossed in the business of putting new material on the statute books that they haven't much time to examine the contents of the books.

Still, we hope that Judge Eisenstadt's suggestion will receive something more than passing attention on Beacon Hill, and that the so-called "right of way" privileges granted utilities will be humanely restricted in the interest of children's lives.

A boy may still detest age
But as for me I know
A man has reached his best age
At forty-two or so.
For youth is the season
Of restlessness and strife
Of passion and unreason
And ignorance of life.
—RUDOLPH LEHMANN

"HIS LIFE WAS like a Horatio Alger story." That and similar references to the works of the late Horatio Alger appear in the newspapers almost daily. Yet Alger's stories haven't been generally read for over 40 years. It is possible not one in 100,000 persons now in their late 30's or early 40's ever read one of Mr. Alger's "Rags to Riches" yarns. When a reporter, editorial writer or headline specialist makes use of the "Alger" reference you can figure he is at least 50 years old. The Alger heroes were always poor boys who grew up to be millionaires. As for Alger himself, he made a lot of money from his books but died a poor man.

PASSING BY: Dr. John Maxwell, Well-known Chicago exponent of the vegetarian diet. The good doctor says he has eaten no meat, fish or fowl in 45 years. Imagine a man living all that time and never having known the joys of consuming a sirloin steak, a cold turkey leg or fresh mountain trout. A grim existence indeed. Dr. Maxwell has been nominated to run for President of the United States by a group known as the American Vegetarian Party. Am no expert on the eating habits of our chief executives of the past. But I do not believe there ever has been a President of the United States who was a vegetarian . . .

Nancy Carroll

Nancy Carroll. Red-haired charmer of the stage and screen. She is a member of the one hundred per cent native New Yorkers club having been born on Manhattan Island. Persons born in other boroughs are not eligible for this club. Nancy, nee Ann La Hiff, made her stage debut as a chorus girl in the "Passing Show Of 1923." Made her first stage hit as Roxie Hart in the play "Chicago." First screen hit in "The Shopworn Angel" with Gary Cooper.

ASKING: Queries from clients. Q — The saxophone player in our band says there was a "jazz opera" presented at the Metropolitan Opera House, the hero of which was a saxophone player. But he doesn't remember the name of the opera. How about this? A—In 1929 the Metropolitan presented "Johnny Spielt Auf" ("Johnny Plays On") a jazz opera by a German composer. The hero was a saxophone player. Believe Lawrence Tibbett played that part. The film rights for this opera were purchased by a Hollywood company but it was never produced as a picture. Q—I claim "Chicago" O'Brien was not born in Chicago and "Pittsburgh Phil" was not born in Pittsburgh. Am referring to the noted successful horse players of the yesteryear. Am I right? A—"Chicago" O'Brien was born in Indiana, I believe. But George E. "Pittsburgh Phil" Smith was born in Pittsburgh.

SIDELIGHTS: George Jessel says the best restaurant in Philadelphia is Bookbinder's, in Baltimore it is Miller's, in Pittsburgh Klein's Ocean Grill and in Chicago the Pump Room at the Ambassador East Hotel . . . Am asked if a woman could be mayor of greater New York. She certainly could. Don't remember any feminine candidates for mayor in New York in my time. However, in 1884, Cynthia Leonard, Lillian Russell's mother, ran for mayor of the big town. She received 84 votes.

WEIGHT REDUCTION: Am informed by a jockey the following is a way a woman can take off five pounds a day; drop four pounds of Epsom salts in a tub of hot water along with one quart of white vinegar and two ounces of ammonia. Then get in the tub and sit there for 20 minutes. After that wrap up in a blanket for 30 minutes. That's all right for a jockey, who has to make weight in order to ride, but in my opinion no good for a woman wishing to streamline. The best way to streamline the figure is by diet. When poundage comes off that way it stays off providing you stick to the diet.

ASIDES: That great battler of the yesteryear, "Ruby Bob" Fitzsimmons, once fought five different men the same night and knocked them all out . . . Who owns and regularly drives the country's oldest Model T Ford? How about John F. Heilscher of Seattle, Wash., who is still regularly driving a Model T bus he bought 26 years ago? That is, a 1921 Model T.

PLEASE NOTE: Ed "Strangler" Lewis, the perennial wrestling star, originated the celebrated "headlock" hold following a long study of the workings of the human body. What makes this "headlock" hold so effective is that it cuts off the flow of the blood to the brain.

"You folks sure are lucky, livin' in the big city! Livin' out here's just like bein' shut up in a box!"

THESE DAYS

By GEORGE E. SOKOLSKY

Copyright, 1947, King Features Syndicate, Inc.

OCCASIONALLY this, as every other, writer is accused of bias. Some choose to deny the allegation. They contend that by some divine dispensation they are relieved of the human traits of prejudice, partisanship, belief and bias. They assume that they are capable of having an open mind on all subjects, which is tantamount to having no mind at all.

George Sokolsky

For the characteristic of an active mind is mingling knowledge with experience to form a judgment. We need not hold a fixed judgment on all questions, particularly upon those about which we know nothing.

For instance, few of us can have any judgment at all on the value of plutonium as we know nothing about this element except that it has been brought into existence in connection with the atom bomb.

Some matters are not related to knowledge and experience but are based on faith. Such fields of human decision are not matters of judgment but of belief, even of blind prejudice.

I, for instance, choose irrevocably to accept the existence of a divine power, of God. I choose to believe that it was His decision that made man different from all else in nature at creation and gave to man the capacities of will and choice. My bias in this respect is beyond discussion.

I choose to have a closed mind. I choose to be prejudiced.

ON THE OTHER HAND, in political matters, each man's accumulation of knowledge and experience indicates a course. Those who reach mature years and are still unable to reach a decision suffer from confusions which, in this era of misnomers, is called Liberalism.

They are like willows which not only move with the wind but bend to it. They are like tumble weeds which are blown hither and yon. Decision is impossible for them; rather, they seek popular acclaim, the voice of the many.

They lean upon slogans and shift with changing polls. They are the kind who one moment shout: "All hail! the King!," and the next: "Off with his head!"

Bias is not an unworthy attribute because it is a mark of decision, of judgment, of faith, of an assumption of responsibility. Of course, bias may become pigheadedness as when the son votes a political party because his father and grandfather voted that way. Bias may become evil prejudice as when a man hates another man because of race or color or geographical distribution.

But then hate itself is immoral under any circumstances and immorality is indefensible. Within the realm of moral law, man possesses the capacities of will and choice and judgment and these represent human liberty and dignity.

At the present time, in all the world, governments and controlling political parties attack bias and prejudice and partisanship with the object of repressing the will of man. They would prefer to turn the human race into robots, into unthinking, unbelieving instruments of production, manipulated by those who have seized and hold the power of state.

CURIOUSLY ENOUGH, many intellectuals, professors in universities, writers, journalists prefer this way of life, for, granted security as long as they obey the masters, they need no judgments of their own. They belong to the ruling class as the intellectual slaves of Greece did by serving those who owned their bodies and used their minds. Aesop was such a slave. Does it matter who owned him?

A free press is a biased press. The non-partisan press evades the responsibility of judgment. The free press exists in very few countries because in most of the world today private judgment is not tolerated. Only those may use their judgment who belong to the ruling class that has seized the power of the state.

In the United States, a tendency toward an unbiased, non-partisan, open-minded press is creeping upon us. It is a definite menace, for soon controversy will be replaced by obedience; frank discussion by accepted authority.

The OWI tried to achieve that during the war. Pressure groups, particularly on the Left, especially representing racial and religious controversies, tried to force the press to conform to their agitations.

We have survived that—principally by preserving our right to bias and prejudice; that is, to free judgment.

BOSTON EVENING AMERICAN, THURS., AUG. 7, 1947

HOLLYWOOD, Aug. 7—Beautiful glamor girls are raining down on the RKO Lot like mamas from heaven. The newest is Marilyn Maxwell, who gets the lead opposite George Raft in "Race Street" with William Bendix also in the cast.

Marilyn Maxwell

Marilyn, like that other honey, Jane Greer, will be given the full glamor treatment since she will probably stay on as a contract player. Dore Schary has taken an option on her now that she is no longer under contract to MGM.

In "Race Street" blonde Missy Maxwell plays the sister of a big bookie who becomes plenty annoyed with the way Raft handicaps winning nags. She'll be gowned as befits a bookie's sister—which means plenty of glad rags. Ned Marin directs and Nat Holt produces with the picture scheduled for an Aug. 18 start.

THAT PERFECTLY SWELL actor, Jose Ferrer, will be signed today or tomorrow to play the Dauphin of France in Ingrid Bergman's picture, "Joan of Lorraine"—or is it now called "St. Joan?"

Walter Wanger and Victor Fleming are completely sold on Ferrer who did such an outstanding job in "Cyrano de Bergerac," and who is one of the best actors on stage or screen.

There is some talk that Valli, who wears the Joan of Arc armor in a stage sequence in "Miracle of the Bells," will be seen as St. Joan before Ingrid. But, fine an actress as Valli is, I don't believe Ingrid has a thing to worry about. After all "Joan of Arc" has been played by famous stars for years.

MARIA MONTEZ, who decided at the last minute not to take her baby with her, is on her way to visit Jean Pierre Aumont, who is making a movie in Paris.

When Maria gets there she is in for a disappointment. I hear straight from Paris that Jean Pierre has voted against appearing opposite her in "The Scarlet Feather." He will direct and act in "Emperor of China" at the Theatre des Maturins. During the two and a half months the play runs, Jean Pierre will make another French picture. He is terribly popular in his native land and is being given every opportunity.

THE BOUNDING BOGARTS are out on the briny deep trying to taunt Frank Morgan into a boat race. But Frank is a little on the snobby side about it after winning the Honolulu yacht race.

But while Bogey and Baby are being carefree vacationers, the business of getting their next movie rolling goes on as usual at Warners. When they report for "Key Largo" they will emote under the direction of John Huston.

Huston has always done handsomely by Humphrey in the matter of direction. He made "The Maltese Falcon," one of Bogey's best, and, through the grapevine, I hear that "Treasure of the Sierra Madre" is a gold nugget hit.

CHATTER IN HOLLYWOOD: Cornel Wilde has been pretty difficult in the past, both at his studio and with columnists. But you can't help but feel sorry for him. Whatever he did, he did because he was so madly in love with his wife, Patricia Knight.

His one thought was to further her career, and any trouble I ever had with him was over her. Things I printed, which sounded innocuous, were construed to mean that she had been slighted.

I feel deeply sorry for Cornel, and I hope he'll get hold of himself and not let this trouble get him down. After all, he's got enough to do to keep his own career running smoothly. Ironic that Pat should have decided to part from him just when she had the break he worked so hard to get for her.

"Daddies," the famous Belasco play produced shortly after the close of the first war, is very applicable to the present day. It's the story of a group of bachelors who adopt war orphans.

Warners filmed it in 1924, in the silent days, and it was quite a picture. Now what I want to tell you is that it has been given to Alex Gottlieb by Jack Warner to produce, and it's on Warners' 1948 schedule. Of course, it will be renovated and brought up to date. Twenty-seven years is a long time, and many people won't remember seeing it in its original version.

SNAPSHOTS OF HOLLYWOOD collected at random: Joan Crawford is displaying a $45,000 diamond and ruby ring. No, Don Barry didn't have a thing to do with it. Joan bought it herself.

Garbo has taken to the mountains for a rest. But not alone. She has a copy of a story by Salka Viertel with her. Yes, the Garbo is still mulling over the idea of making a picture. I wish she would. No one has ever taken her place for my money.

Walter Winchell, who did such a magnificent job raising money for the Damon Runyon cancer fund, is being given a party tomorrow night at the Mocambo by Charlie Morrison.

Walter Winchell

In view of all the excitement about the Cornel Wilde separation, pretty smart of Sol Wurtzel to get Mrs. Wilde's (Pat Knight's) movie, "Roses Are Red," out in a hurry.

Roy Rogers grossed $1,000,000 on his tour with his thrill circus. He played only six cities, but the shows were put on in ball parks and they were completely sold out. Give me my boots and saddle—but quickly!

Mickey Rooney and Brian Donlevy are partners. Yes indeed, they are opening golf driving ranges across the country.

Speaking of golf, Clark Gable is playing it every day now. With Dolly O'Brien and Millicent Rogers both in town, Clark, who is supposed to have both of these very wealthy women in love with him, is sticking closer to his ranch than ever.

Peggy Ann Garner and Viscount Anthony Furness, Lady Thelma Furness' son, are a very cute pair, and are frequently seeing each other. Gloria Vanderbilt, Thelma's twin, who has been very sick, is expected here Aug. 23 to spend their birthday together.

The redhead being seen with Steve Cochran is Marguerite Campbell, concert pianist.

Yvonne De Carlo dining at Sportsman's Lodge with her former boss, N.T.G.

The gleam in Tommy Dorsey's eye is now being kindled by Jane New, the beautiful blonde with whom he has been haunting Ciro's.

That's all today.

Boston After Dark

SOMETHING NEW in exploiting motion pictures has been added in the case of "The Long Night," currently at the Keith-Memorial . . . Terry Turner's facile talent for ballyhoo has been working strenuously, and as a result "The Long Night" will have a sequel . . . As the film now ends, the male lead Joe, played by Henry Fonda, is taken by police at gunpoint from a flat in which he had holed up, determined to shoot it out with the Law . . . The audience is to believe that Joe, who has slain a rival for the affections of Barbara Bel Geddes, will be given a fair trial . . . His ultimate fate is not learned—not in the film, that is . . . So Mr. Turner, most famous of the modern movie "stunt" press agents, decided that the picture's should have the sequel, or epilogue.

THE MOCK TRIAL about which readers of this newspaper have been reading will be that sequel . . . A replica of a courtroom scene will be provided at Symphony Hall, Aug. 15 . . . The young killer, Joe, will go on trial for his life, and renowned lawyers, Tom Courtney of Chicago and Herbert Callahan of Boston, will prosecute and defend the character named Joe.

Jurors for the trial will be the Symphony Hall audience . . . Trials similar to the one proposed for Symphony Hall, and cast carefully with lawyers, movie actors and members of the general public, are being staged in many big cities . . . Mr. Turner got the idea for his mock trial stunt by pondering whether the American version, "A Long Night," was more effective than the ending of the story in the French original, "Time to Kill" . . . In the original French, the ambuscaded Joe is slain resisting capture . . . A happy ending was impossible in an American movie, as the Hays Office code restrains movie writers and producers from letting crime go unpunished . . . The French ending was voted down because American audiences are notoriously unsympathetic to having their heroes killed off — even by the Law.

AFTER MUSING for a long period over the merits of the two possible endings, the original French and the one now unfolding at the Keith-Memorial Tub-thumper Turner decided he would enjoy seeing a finish to the American picture which could be written in real life.

"THE LONG NIGHT" cost RKO Pictures more than $1,900,000 to make . . . Half that amount, probably, will be spent in ballyhooing the film in the 348 key theaters which will show "The Long Night" in the next 10 days . . . As for the film itself, Vincent Price stole the acting honors, in this opinion, and little Barbara Bel Geddes qualifies for eventual stardom . . . Miss Bel Geddes made her theatrical debut here in Boston when "Letters From Lucerne" was playing at the Wilbur.

HENRY FONDA OWNS an interest in "The Long Night" . . . Yet Mr. Fonda demanded and received an extra $5000 as bonus for enacting his film role, Joe, for radio transcriptions . . . These transcriptions are now sounding off on the airwaves . . . Listen for Vincent Price's acting as Maximilian, a magician who courts the heroine and invites violent death for himself . . . Price has had considerable experience as a radio performer.

MR. AND MRS. FRANKLIN D. ROOSEVELT, JR., stopped briefly in Boston en route to a Maine vacation . . . For the information of several tipsters who thought they had recognized Franklin, Jr., the red convertible coupe in which the couple were seen belongs to Ed Wyner, owner of the Ritz Carlton Hotel—which explains the Massachusetts plates . . . Edward loaned the coupe to the Roosevelts for the week . . . He had no personal use for it because he is in Mamaroneck, N. Y., to play in the Anderson Memorial four-ball tournament as partner of Ted Bishop, former state amateur champion.

NEW YORK, Aug. 7—A tiny lass—about six years old—tied up traffic outside the 48th Street Theatre the other night by turning up at the stage door just before curtain time carrying a small white rabbit which she pleaded to be allowed to present to Jimmy Stewart. A soft-hearted mounted policeman on duty at the alley broke a path through the crowd and escorted her backstage while the assembled mob of Jimmy's admirers broke into cheers . . . The new night club called "The Harem" will burst upon the late hour patrons equipped with a $25,000 revolving stage—the only one of its kind in the city. The idea? It's supposed to turn so that patrons in every part of the cafe can see the showgirls . . . The grapevine from Hollywood is carrying a bet that the Ilona Massey-Jay Kurtz wedding will never come off . . . It took an American baritone, Brooklyn's own Jess Walters, to introduce opera in English at London's Convent Garden. Walters is in New York now on a visit and rather happy about the warm weather because he froze all spring in heatless London. He reports that sometimes the cold was so intense in Covent Garden that the collective teeth-chattering of the audience sounded like applause.

WASHINGTON, Aug. 7 — It is my considered opinion that Sen. Harry P. Cain, of Washington, will never be able to get Johnny Meyer convicted as a draft dodger.

I do not think that in the length and breadth of this land you could get a jury of 12 men, or 12 women, or an admixture of both, to string along.

One look at the 41-year-old drum-beater for Howard Hughes, who had the largesse to throw around, and the jury would vote against conviction on the ground that blimps were too unwieldy for combat.

I have private information that the chairman of his draft board threw a startled glance at the Meyerian haunch, paunch and jowl, and whispered:

"Listen—even if the Japs are down in the lobby, don't come!"

MR. MEYER, since his sudden rise to notoriety, has been pictured as a character, but the picture doesn't come close to describing the reality. Mr. Meyer is a natural-born clown. He could no more act restrained than he could reduce.

I remember, about a year ago, I was out in Hollywood and introduced Johnny to my sister, Mary. He offered to drive us from Romanoff's to Ciro's.

Mary was quite impressed with Hollywood people and was inclined to be on her starchy behavior. We had ridden a couple of blocks when she noted that a taxi, in which sat bolt upright an austere and elderly female, was keeping pace. My sister asked if the old dame was anyone important.

"Sure," replied Johnny, who never misses an opportunity to get in a plug, "She's the mother of the outlaw in our picture." Then he stuck his head out the window and startled the old doll into conniptions by yelling:

"Yah! Yah! Wanna race?"

MR. MEYER'S attitude toward his multimillionaire boss is in line with his general behavior. Howard Hughes is constantly the butt of his gags. Once Johnny was entertaining lavishly at El Morocco on Mr. Hughes' dough when the young airplane manufacturer came in looking more seedy and down at heels than usual.

Hughes was about to join the party when Johnny summoned the head-waiter and asked him to remove the unwelcome guest.

"No tramps here," he ordered. "This party is for rich people!"

A short time ago Johnny, who insists he works twenty-fours a day for coolie wages, tried to hit Hughes for more money. The latter looked genuinely surprised.

"But, Johnny," he pleaded, "what do you need more dough for? Look—you have a hotel suite and I've only got a room. You've got a Cadillac and I've only a Chevrolet. What more do you want?"

A COUPLE of nights ago Mr. Lee Mortimer, night club columnist of the New York Mirror and ex-sparring partner of Frank Sinatra, accompanied me on a visit to Mr. Meyer in his suite at the Hotel Statler.

Mr. Mortimer was telling how he could have beaten Sinatra if he had had any muscles, when one of the several hundred promoters who have taken it upon themselves to advise Mr. Meyer how he should act in front of senators, barged in. The interloper inquired what Mr. Mortimer and I were doing there.

"If you must know," retorted Mr. Mortimer, "we're pumping him."

"Yes," interjected Mr. Meyer. "They're plying me with my liquor!"

Ever since he admitted, from the senatorial witness chair, that he has no technical knowledge of airplanes or the airplane industry, Johnny has been burning up.

"I answered too fast," he fumes. "Can you imagine them getting me to admit that I'm dumb?"

Mr. Meyer is generally outspoken—usually painfully so—but I found him cagey for the first time when I asked him what he really thought of his star party guest, Elliott Roosevelt.

The first time I asked the question Johnny pretended to be engrossed in studying a brunette across the room, Patsy Brewer. The second time he leaned over and began adjusting Mortimer's tie. The third time he moaned he didn't have a small suitcase for an overnight hop to New York and would I lend him one.

Finally I gave up and asked him how he liked Faye Emerson, the lady he cupided into the Roosevelt family. His moon face beamed:

"Faye?—Oh, Faye's wonderful. Now did I ever tell you about my fiancee, Janet Thomas——?"

IF TODAY IS YOUR BIRTHDAY: Resolve now to make at least one new friend this month. The stars indicate much pleasantness from the direction of recently-made acquaintances. Above all, don't get in a rut or be a hermit. That's disastrous for persons born on this date.

Q—Our first tomatoes have a large black spot on the bottom of the fruit.

A—This is blossom rot, caused by dry weather or an over-supply of nitrogen. Soak soil thoroughly and apply a mulch now to regulate water supply.

Q—Our gladiolus plants are turning yellow. Is this caused by lack of fertilizer?

A—Your plants are probably showing the effects of thrips. This insect can now be controlled on gladiolus by dusting the plants every two weeks with 3 per cent DDT dust.

Q—The lower leaves of our staked tomatoes are turning yellow. There does not seem to be any disease showing.

A—This often happens on staked tomatoes. It is caused by the fact that shading of the lower leaves causes them to lose color. When they become brown, pick them off, to keep the plants clean.

Q—Recently we sprayed some weeds along the edge of the garden with 2, 4-D, and now the tomato leaves are curled. Could this be caused by the weed spray?

A—There has been some indication that this weed killer will drift if prevailing winds carry across the area sprayed. Plants will probably outgrow this damage.

Q—Is it wise to save our own carrot seed?

A—Not practical. Garden carrots cross readily with wild carrots and you will have a lot of white roots as a result. The best insurance for a good crop of carrots is to buy good seed.

Q—Will table salt kill cabbage worms?

A—Not too good. Better to use rotenone.

Q—Is it time to hill potatoes now in most cases?

A—Potatoes are too large to hill now. High ridging is not necessary. Make broad, shallow ridges so that the tubers will be protected from sunburn.

Q—Should suckers be pulled from sweet corn to make it form ears?

A—Not necessary. Does more harm than good, and requires much more labor.

4-H Stock Show Set for September

Horace M. Jones, State 4-H leader, announced the Eastern States 4-H Roundup is coming to Springfield in September. More than 400 club members from seven states, including many Junior Victory Army youngsters, are grooming animals and exhibits for the roundup.

About 100 4-H members will exhibit and sell their beef calves and show dairy animals. This event is one of the major features of the Eastern States Exposition, Sept. 14 to 20.

Camp Vail, with booth exhibits and demonstrations in the boys' and girls' building, calls for approximately 100 4-Hers. The others will be members of poultry and dairy judging teams. According to Jones, meals and sleeping quarters for all official 4-H delegates are provided in the Junior Achievement building.

Kenneth Ripley of Blandford is superintendent of the baby beef show. Hilton Boynton, dairy specialist, University of New Hampshire, heads the 4-H dairy show. Both are former 4-H exhibitors.

To join the JVA, send your name, age and address to the Junior Victory Army, P. O. Box 228, Boston, Mass. If, in addition to enlistment, you want the JVA insignia pin and membership card, enclose a 10-cent coin well wrapped in your letter.

Siegel Slaying Claim Labeled Fantastic

BEVERLY HILLS, Cal., Aug. 7 (AP)—Police Chief C. H. Anderson described as "inaccurate and fantastic" a statement which Sheriff W. B. Allen of Wanika, Okla., said was given him by Virgil Manning, who claimed he drove the getaway car for the killer of Benjamin (Bugsy) Siegel.

The chief said he received a copy of the statement and declared that "no part of Manning's story jibes with the facts." Siegel, gambler and former public enemy, was slain June 20 in Beverly Hills.

Breakfast Hearty Meal

By MARTHA LEE
Household Editor

WHAT'S HAPPENED to breakfast? This good meal which used to have much of the heartiness of other meals of the day, has dwindled down to a mere shadow of its former self.

After the body has been without food for 12 hours, it is logical that breakfast should be a hearty meal. It's logical, too, that one-quarter to one-half of the daily food requirements should be provided for by breakfast.

A well planned breakfast starts with fruit. A tall glass of orange juice provides the body with the vitamin C needed for a whole day.

Next in the breakfast parade comes cereal, then eggs, or a breakfast meat such as bacon, ham and sausage links or patties. Eggs may be served in a variety of ways—soft-cooked, scrambled, dropped on toast, coddled, etc. And eggs go well with any of the meats mentioned above as well as corned beef hash and fried luncheon meat. Dried beef, creamed or in an omelet is another good breakfast suggestion.

HAM 'N' EGGS

For the queen of all breakfasts, a ham and egg breakfast, use ¼ inch thick slices of ham. This may be "boiled" ham, baked ham, ready-to-eat ham, or uncooked ham (cook-before-eating type). Pan fry ham slices slowly in their own fat or a little added fat, until hot and lightly browned. Remove to a hot platter, then fry eggs in the hot ham fat. Top ham slices with the cooked eggs

FRIED EGGS IN BOLOGNA CUPS

Another good egg and meat combination is eggs fried in bologna cups. In a little hot fat in a skillet, cook bologna slices until they curl up around the edges. Carefully drop an egg into each cup. Put a tablespoon of water in the bottom of the skillet, cover, and cook until eggs are set but not hard. This takes about 15 minutes.

BREAKFAST DISH HINTS

To make fluffy French toast to serve with crisp bacon strips, separate the egg yolks from the whites, instead of beating them up together. Beat egg yolks well, add seasonings and milk, then fold in stiffly beaten egg whites. Dip the bread in this mixture and fry as usual.

In making cornmeal mush, add some crisp diced bacon, diced ham, or chopped luncheon meat to the cornmeal mixture just before pouring into the mold to chill.

Variety in the breakfast bread gives interest to the menu also. Such items as hot biscuits, muffins, sweet rolls, toast, and doughnuts give breakfast added appeal.

Try some of the packaged muffin and roll mixes once in awhile for speedy and delicious treats. The hot roll mix, the newest of these mixes, can be varied to include Parker House Rolls, Cloverleaf Rolls, Braids, Pan Rolls, and so on.

Griddle cakes, too, made either with ingredients on your pantry shelf, or with the aid of ready mixes, are ideal breakfast food. Serve them with delicious fried sausage or bacon.

GRIDDLE CAKES

2½ cups sifted flour
5 tsp. baking powder
1 tbsp. sugar 1 tsp. salt
1 egg, slightly beaten
2 cups milk
¼ cup shortening, melted

Mix and sift dry ingredients. Combine slightly beaten egg and milk and stir into dry ingredients. Stir in shortening. Bake on both sides on ungreased hot griddle. Add more milk if thinner cakes are desired. Makes about 18 cakes. (If this recipe is divided in half, use 1 egg yolk or decrease milk if whole egg is used.)

Invitation to Shower Only

DEAR MRS. BEECKMAN: Just recently a friend of mine sent me an invitation to attend a bridal shower in honor of a close friend of hers whom I did not know. I accepted the invitation and had a very enjoyable time. At the shower the bride-to-be did not mention anything about my attending her wedding reception.

Now the friend through whom I was invited to the shower has asked me if I am going to attend the wedding reception, and when I said I hadn't been invited, she told me that an invitation to a bridal shower always means that you are also invited to the wedding and reception. I certainly never had such an impression. Is there any such rule about this? C. M.

No. Apparently your friend is so devoted to you that she wants to have you "in" on all the occasions to which she is invited! If the bride-to-be wishes to have you attend her wedding and reception she will send you a special invitation for this, and she certainly would not take it for granted that since you came to the shower given for her you would expect also to come to the wedding. However, if it is a large church wedding, your friend may ask this girl to send an invitation to you . . . the invitation to the reception depends on the kind of reception, principally whether large or small.

Art of Makeup at the Beach

By RUTH MUGGLEBEE
Beauty Fashion Editor

THOSE GLORIOUS week-ends away from the city and the office . . . which don't come often enough in summertime . . . mean as much to me as, unquestionably, they mean to you. They are a respite from the confining and restraining pursuit of daily activities. They gave one a chance to continue with life . . . to look out to sea . . . to look up at the sky . . . to revel in the carefree nonchalance of no work and all play.

But we go to the beach prepared to meet and greet the sun and surf. Do you? Suntan protection doesn't consume our interest at the moment . . . but tanned skin subtlety does. Of course, we assume that every girl intelligently acquires a tan in successive but well-guarded stages . . . but does the skin get over-processed or under processed during the transformation?

ALL SET FOR THE BEACH

What do you use when you go to the beach? a reader wants to know . . . and she has a right to the answer. She's seen me, she writes, and she's envious of my tanned but "truly beautiful" complexion. Thanks, thanks, for the compliment!

So, here's Mugglebee under the microscope! When we saunter forth in our mermaid regalia for a session with the sun and surf . . . first of all, our skin is scrupulously clean. It has been washed to a pure-as-the-driven-snow stage. Save for a splash of carmine on our lips . . . without which we'd feel anatomically bare . . . the face is strictly au naturelle.

However, upon arrival at the beach and after we've flopped on the hot sands . . . immediately we douse the complexion in a veritable fountain of semi-liquid lotion . . . opalescent in hue and precious in content. It is not a suntan lotion in any sense of the word . . . it is skin-conditioning, complexion rebirth lotion which is as wonderful nourishment for the facial pelt as milk is for the developing infant.

It is a preparation which we use all year round . . . even as a foundation for the dusting powder over the facial expanse. It keeps the complexion in a perpetual stage of petal-prettiness and velvety softness. Neither the sun, surf nor wind can rob the skin of its vital resiliency while this lotion is there to protect and replenish lubrication. Hence the complexion is never in thirsting want of rich emollients at the season's end.

The rest of the body is protected by a suntan lotion for this facial-fortune cosmetic is no budget-beauty-item to waste on the more rugged parts of the body. After our sun bath . . . and when we get back to the house . . . we again wash our face . . . but vigorously, with another and very unusual lotion, recently introduced. This cleanser which lathers profusely in water does a bang-up beauty job for the complexion. The eyes are bathed with a medicinally-formulated lotion to renew their sparkle and intensify the eye-ball whiteness. Then, the complexion is ready for its dusting of powder, its repeated lip coloring artistry . . . and Mugglebee is ready to sit back and enjoy the cool evening breezes.

For the name of this lotion for a beautiful complexion, and the new and unusual liquid cleanser, phone the Beauty Dept. LIBerty 4000, daily except week-ends, or write me, care of the Boston American, inclosing a stamped, self-addressed envelope.

THIS MERRY mermaid is Paramount star Betty Hutton . . . lest there be any confusion as to identity after reading today's beauty column. With her manifested personality plus . . . she is one of the obvious reasons why gentlemen prefer blondes . . . as she enjoys . . . even as you and I . . . a carefree moment away from work and in the refreshing relaxation of cool water . . . under a blanket of sun and sky.

Poor Choice of Escorts

DEAR MISS FAIRFAX: On the Fourth of July, my girl friends and I went out with our boy friends. At the place where we went, some girls we didn't know began flirting with our boy friends and later asked them to drive them to a bar. They didn't come back for two hours and, when they did, they were very drunk. Even when they came back, they stayed with these girls and did not come back with us again until another boy went and got them.

Now they want very much to make up with us. What should we do? Weren't they in the wrong, and should we make up with them?

"TWO UNDECIDED GIRLS"

Dear "Undecided Girls":

Of course your boy friends were in the wrong, and very much so. Whether you make up with them or not, I should think would depend on how they intend to behave in the future. It doesn't seem to me, however, that you would want anything more to do with young men who took you out and then left you to go off and get drunk with girls they picked up.

However, if you still like them so much that you want to give them another chance, that is your own business. But, if you do, and they behave badly again, your heads should be examined if you do not drop them permanently.

The Correct Thing

WEDDING ETIQUETTE—Guests should remain in the church pews until the bridal party has passed down the aisle. The members of the families and those in front pews follow the bridal party, then the general guests leave. It is bad form for any guests to hurry to outside aisles in order to be in the vestibule or on the steps to see the bride leave.

What College Girl Wears

By EILEEN CALLAHAN

POSTED up in the Hall of Has-Beens, along with the Floradora Girl and the Flapper, is the newest and strangest entry of them all. She's a young female with a lost look. Her untidy mop of hair is long and bushy. She's wearing a sweater four sizes too big for her and a skirt two sizes too small. Her bare legs must be cold for they are covered with goose pimples yet, oddly enough, she is wearing heavy woolen bobby socks and heavy, very dirty saddle shoes. It's rather a pity and a lesson to us all how glory passes, for a short time ago this strange figure was queen of the campus, the typical American college girl.

The girl who rates on the campus today is definitely a smooth article. She's smooth from her shining, well-coiffeured hair to her polished leather flats. She wears sweaters and skirts but only when they fit well. She'll vary her wardrobe with tailored blouses and well-cut shirtwaist dresses. She's a smart girl and she's steering clear of the Hall of Has-Beens.

Smart Set To Study Abroad

By BETTY ALDEN

WITH TWO DAUGHTERS going abroad next month and another awaiting a visit from the stork, Mrs. Martin J. Caulfield of Waban has more notes on her cuff and in her pocketbook than a society editor. She not only has to keep tabs on things to pack in foreign-bound trunks but also of friends to be notified of the arrival of her second grandchild.

Lorraine, the debutante of the family, is sailing from New York Sept. 12 for Switzerland to specialize in languages at Chateau Brillamont, a fashionable girls' school in Lausanne. She is going with two sister debs and former Brimmer May classmates, Elvy Sherrill Hand of Mt. Vernon st., and Rosamond Langmaid of Marblehead. The party will also include five New York girls and a chaperone.

Lorraine Caulfield

Lorraine's luggage will be packed with snuggies, fur-lined coats and plenty of winter sports togs for skiing in the Alps is the chief recreation at Brillamont. Her sister, Rosemarie, on the other hand, is acquiring a wardrobe of tropical clothes for she is going to Celinos, Ecuador, to study art and interior decorating at the American College and the climate there is hot. She made her debut last winter.

Celinos is the home of their sister, Mrs. John Sweeny, wife of Lt. Com. Sweeny, second highest ranking Navy officer in Ecuador and an Annapolis graduate. Mrs. Sweeny is currently visiting her family here.

With the exception of shopping trips to Boston to get ready for school, Lorraine and Rosemarie are having a whirl at the family summer home Marg-mart at Grand Beach, Me., named for their mother and dad, Margaret and Martin Caulfield.

WEDDING BELLS will chime Friday afternoon, Aug. 15, for Helen Rothwell Shepard and H. Nickerson Lennox Boyle, who were both in the Navy during the war. The prospective bride is the daughter of Mr. and Mrs. Frederick J. Shepard, Jr., of West Newton and Marblehead Neck and Mr. Boyle's parents are Dr. and Mrs. Harold Nickerson Boyle of Reading.

The couple will be married at St. Michael's Church, Marblehead, with a reception at the Shepards' summer home. Helen is a graduate of Bryn Mawr and member of the Junior League. During the war she was in the first class of midshipmen to be commissioned in the WAVES and was released from active duty in 1945.

On her wedding day she will be attended by her sister, Mrs. Shea Smith 3d of Marblehead, as matron of honor. Harrison Ragle of Boston and Topsfield. Mrs. Chandler Robbins of Boston and Biddeford Pool, Me., is the maternal grandmother.

'Dear Ruth' to Paramount, Fenway Screens

"Dear Ruth," Paramount's amusing film version of the Broadway stage hit, is now to be seen on the Paramount and Fenway screens.

Joan Caulfield, William Holden and Billy De Wolfe are starred with Edward Arnold and Mona Freeman in Norman Krasna's delightful comedy stemming from a teen-aged Miss Fixit's morale-building correspondence with an unknown soldier in her older sister's name.

Miss Caulfield's Ruth, in the midst of planning her wedding to Billy De Wolfe's stuffy suitor, finds love complicated when Holden's letter-writing GI presents himself as her correspondence fiance.

Lucille Made Dance Success

She's a dream-girl in truth to 13-year-old Joan Eunson, is Lucille Ball, who is winding up her second and final week in the Shubert Theater's hit show, "Dream Girl," in a blaze of boxoffice glory.

The schoolgirl-daughter of Cosmopolitan Magazine's fiction editor, Dale Eunson, she played that brattish youngster in her father's play, "Guest in the House," at Cambridge a season or so ago. She was being given a dance by her parents not so long ago.

She goes to Barnard, which, in the opinion of the seven invited male guests, automatically cancels out the come-hither of her gardenia-tinted skin, her wide, brown eyes and her lovely, dusky long-bob. Just an old girls' school, the boys scoffed, desiring no part of a party given by a girls' school product.

"And so mother (Mrs. Eunson uses the byline, Katherine Albert, over her best-selling fiction) decided to do something about it," Joan confided. "Lucille Ball, who had arrived in New York that morning, is a dear friend of ours so mother phoned her. She asked her if she'd please come over to the house for merely five minutes. Just to give the boys a look!

"Well, do you want to know what that wonderful Lucille did?" queried Joan, her wide eyes even wider, and then going on without pausing for punctuation. "She came over at 9 and stayed until 11 and danced with every last one of those seven boys and were they thrilled and was I a social success!!!"

Another nice thing about Miss Ball from Butte is the nice things she has done quietly for Susan Peters, the lovely, young starlet who suffered a hunting accident that placed her in a wheel-chair.

Possibly remembering her own fear of never walking again when she was paralyzed from the hips down as the result of an automobile accident and for three years sat in a wheel-chair, Lucille daily sent a yellow rose with a card, "Hi, Susiface! Luci," followed up with produce from her and Desi Arnaz's Chatsworth ranch across San Fernando Valley.

Nor was that all, there were hairdressers, dentists, masseuses to overwhelm Susan Peters with their administrations so that she might forget temporarily to worry about her unpredictable future.

Lucille doesn't like to and won't talk about this, a friend told it, but she will talk about a possible production that has nothing to do with Broadway or Hollywood and is dearest to her and Desi's hearts.

"We want to have a baby. I'd rather be back with Desi on the ranch, doing the innumerable chores that keep me busy there and waiting for a baby than be President."

Now Miss Ball is a most glamorous appearing person, is one of the West Coast's best-dressed women and, with her beloved Latin, Desidero Alberto Arnaz y De Acha III, formed the best rumba team that used to be seen in Hollywood's smartest night spots.

She is also a breezy and wholesome girl who never forgets her hallroom, on the fifth floor back, where she frequently tried to prepare food over the gas jet . . . or lived on hope and ambition for a week or two in lieu of it. She wants a career but not enough to sacrifice her once menaced marital happiness for it.

"There have been some nibbles since I've been doing 'Dream Girl,'" she admitted, "but I'm going to take my time deciding."

The question of how the film-conditioned Lucille agreed to take on such a stupendous chore as the title role of Elmer Rice's Broadway stage hit came up.

"Ignorance," retorted Lucille, with characteristic frankness "I didn't know I'd be stage-dreaming all but a few minutes from the first curtain to the final one."

AN R-K-O RE-RELEASE

'The Long Night,' at Keith's, Packs Tremendous Wallop

By PEGGY DOYLE

The American "Odd Man Out," which would be RKO Radio's savagely directed, brilliantly enacted psychological drama, "The Long Night," is now on the way to a successful run on Keith Memorial screen.

Elsewhere in this newspaper you have been reading about the mock trial of the picture's central character, Joe Adams, which is to be held next Wednesday night in Symphony Hall. It is to be a follow-up on the torturous 12 hours in a hunted man's life that might well have been his last on earth.

The story packs a tremendous wallop although it is confusing in its social implications. It is a rewrite of the Jean Gabin starring French production but broader in scope. It exchanges that film's more sophisticated approach to morals for a deeper understanding of a veteran's frustration, questions a code which by commending men for killing makes criminals of them.

Despite its flaws, "The Long Night" is compelling theater thanks to Anatole Litvak's dynamic direction and the complete naturalness of the principals' portrayals.

Henry Fonda's discharged soldier takes on a sandblasting job in small town on his return from overseas. Here he meets and falls in love with a girl, Barbara Bel Geddes, who, like himself, has grown up in an orphanage and is fighting loneliness.

He desires to marry her but she puts him off. He learns that a middle-aged cafe performer-Casanova who seeks to break up their warm relationship on the pretext that he is her father is the reason. When the suave, definitely mad magician comes to the young couple's room to kill him, he is killed instead by the lad who has become enraged by his compromising innuendoes.

Desperation over his inability . . . in his own mind . . . to explain satisfactorily his apparent guilt, decides him to barricade himself in his room. While the increasingly clamorous din of neighbors gathered in the streets, the strident sirens signalling the arrival of police, of Dimitri Tiomkin's considerably enhancing "mood" music assaults his ears, Joe remains hidden in his poor, little, bullet-pierced hideaway. That is, he remains until the tardy delivery of tear-gas bombs and the soft-hearted assistance of his girl persuade him to surrender in the name of justice.

Henry Fonda's Joe is superb make-believing, and so is that of Barbara Bel Geddes, who is appearing in her first picture since she quit Broadway for Hollywood. Ann Dvorak, in her initial picture for the studio since she returned from England, gives a most effective personation of the magician's disillusioned assistant. Vincent Price's phony magician is an outstanding characterization.

'Life With Father' Film Here Aug. 20

The William Powell-Irene Dunne co-starring film version of Clarence Day's famous stage comedy, "Life With Father," is to have its local premiere at the Esquire and Modern Theaters on Aug. 20, following its Skowhegan world premiere.

The special day-and-date engagement at the Esquire, on Huntington ave., opposite Symphony Hall, and the Modern, located on downtown Washington st., will be presented on a continuous performance policy from opening to closing with no reserved seats.

The supporting cast is headed by Elizabeth Taylor, Zasu Pitts and Edmund Gwenn.

Faye Emerson to Star In Comedy at Dennis

Faye Emerson will star in the premiere of "Profile," a new comedy by Charles and Michael Robinson, at Richard Aldrich's Cape Playhouse, Dennis on Cape Cod, for the week commencing Monday.

She will be supported by Edmon Ryan, Herbert Berghof and Cora Witherspoon.

GRANDDAD GANDER

NEW YORK, Aug. 7 (AP)—Some men take dogs for pets, a few take cats, but Happy Brown will take a gander. A he-goose, that is.

Snapper, now 10 years old, is such a friend-maker for Brown's poultry market that an insurance company will pay Brown $100 if Snapper commits suicide or it lost through "war, invasion, rebellion, insurrection, seizure or abduction."

The gander loves children, but hates the telephone, the color blue, Brown's assistant, all uniforms and the Scotsman next door.

Polio Seen to Be On Down Grade

WASHINGTON, Aug. 7 (AP) After four bad polio years, a break is in sight for 1947, a U S Public Health Service official reported today.

However, he urged the public to observe the usual precautions during the rest of the infantile paralysis "season," which runs from June through September

Reporting a total of 1955 cases this year up to Aug. 2, compared with 5450 for the same period last year, the official told a reporter:

"It is not too late for a sharp rise in a particular locality. Indication is that the high incidence of the past four years will be broken."

Plane Crash

accident brought a third tragic end for three Mandell brothers. The air crash victim's elder brother was killed in action in the first World War. A younger brother was killed about 15 years ago while playing polo.

TWIN PROBE LAUNCHED

Records at Suffolk Probate Court show that Mandell and his wife, the former Geraldine Clark, were divorced last March 13. Judge Frederick J. Dillon granted the wife a decree on grounds of cruelty. The Mandells were married in Brookline, Sept. 23, 1923.

Arthur J. Staveley, investigator for the Massachusetts Aeronautics Commission, and Royce Kunze, district inspector for the Civil Aeronautics Authority, conducted a probe at the crash scene.

They reported the plane stopped at Burlington, Vt., to clear customs on its return from Montreal. The plane crashed at 2:20 a. m. The victims had left Burlington at 11:53 p. m., little more than two hours after taking off from Montreal.

The plane was a Stinson Station Wagon, 1947 model, which Staveley said carries a normal four-hour fuel supply. The plane was airborne about 2½ hours from Burlington, but inspectors were unable to learn if the craft had been able to refuel there because of the late hour.

FUEL SUPPLY LOW

The inspectors said that if the monoplane was not out of gas, its supply was dangerously low.

Firemen pointed out that, had the pilot banked slightly to the left and traveled another 10 feet north he would have missed the chimney and landed in a pond only three feet deep. The group would almost certainly have been saved, they said.

The plane was due at Bedford Airport at 12:53 a. m., according to a flight plan filed by Pell before his takeoff from Montreal at 9:30 last night. Instead, ground fog grew thick and the pilot apparently lost visual contact on the flight south.

Residents of Charlestown and Malden heard the plane's motor in the cloudy sky as it circled over the northern part of the metropolitan area with Pell apparently able to see the glow of lights through the overcast but unable to get his bearings.

About 2:15 a. m. the plane's noise grew louder in the Sullivan sq. area, less than a mile from the scene of the crash.

James Maher, 32, of North Main st., Charlestown, was in Sullivan sq., he said, when he heard the plane swooping low and he ran from the El station expecting to see a crash.

The craft next appeared over Sullivan sq. with its motor throttled down in a landing procedure. It swept over the square at low altitude, heading for the lights of the oil plant.

Frank Hansen, 47, of Clorner rd., Lynn, an oil truck driver, said he was driving in Beacham st. beside the plant when he saw the plane glide down at a very low altitude.

The crash followed, and the bright red plane appeared to roost on top of the double chimney before it burst into flames and then toppled down the stack.

Last to see the plane in the air were Asst. Fire Chief James A. Scott of Everett and his aide, Fireman Charles Hill. Hill remarked he had just seen a "shooting star" and the chief retorted that he had seen both a green and white light in close relation. These were identified as the tail and starboard wing lights.

Prompt action by William Cashman, night superintendent at the plant, prevented a more serious fire. One section of the chimney's wall at the top was opened by the engine's impact, and Cashman ordered that all gasoline mains leading to the incinerator be shut off.

Only the pilot light in the big stack was burning at the time of the crash, and the explosion and fire are thought to have resulted from the small amount of gasoline still carried by the plane.

PART OF PLANE SALVAGED

The Stinson monoplane, chartered from North Atlantic Airways, took off for Montreal from Beverly Airport. It was due to take off from Montreal for return to Bedford Airport, however, because Beverly is not equipped for night landings.

Only parts of the plane salvaged intact were a cabin door and part of the tail assembly which was left perched on the top of the chimney.

On the other side of Beacham st., beside the oil plant is a body of water known as Esso Pond which is 500 feet long, 300 feet wide and only three feet deep. It was toward this darkened area the pilot was evidently flying in the belief it was a runway beside the brightly lighted buildings which glowed like lanterns.

Army Schools to Teach 15,000 U. S. Children

WASHINGTON, Aug. 7 (AP) —The school bell will call about 15,000 American youngsters to Army-sponsored schools in occupied areas when the next term opens, the War Dept. announced today.

There will be 36 elementary schools and five high schools in Europe and 15 elementary and two high schools in Japan and Korea for children of Army men and civilians stationed abroad.

The Man Who Plugs Braves' Pitching Leak--John Sain

Austen Lake

By AUSTEN LAKE

THERE ARE KINDS of headaches, dull ones like the steady tick of a kitchen clock, large ones like repetitious bursts from a bartender's beer mallet. Then there is the extra-super kind of headache for which there is no opiate powder or sedative pill, such as the Braves' pitching is causing Manager Billy Southworth.

That brings us to John Franklin Sain, Jr., the tall, serious brunet with an Oriental cast of countenance who has stood, stiff and starchy, while the rest of the staff wilted under the heat, double bills and night games. John is the main reason why the Braves are clinging by their toenails to the first division, having won five straight and 15 for the season.

FUNNY THING! JOHNNY is probably the most valuable chattel owned by the Braves, and yet they got him originally for string, stamps and something out of the attic. To be exact it was $5000, which is just prune pits in the current player markets. Why! the Braves paid $50,000 for Johnny Hopp, $40,000 for a guy named Saunders, $35,000 for Danny Litwhiler, $25,000 for Red Barrett, $75,000 for Mort Cooper and $30,000 for Billy Herman. In fact, they paid in cash and players more than $100,000 for Earl Torgeson. So the five grand they forked over to Nashville for Sain is just cornflakes. That's the sort of gamble the ball business is!

Jack Zellar, the Braves' head scout, was musing about Sain the other night and he told how, in 1938, Judge Landis caught the Detroit club, of which Zellar was then general manager, with its tailboard down in some shady, cover-up deals with the minor leagues. So the Ole Jedge, tough hombre that he was, made some 80-odd Tiger farmhands free agents. It was a pretty painful lesson, costing the Tigers around $500,000 in player values.

"It was like putting candy in the kid's pockets," said Zeller ruefully, "Most of 'em went out and peddled themselves to the highest bidder and made themselves some jack. But the only letter I got from any of the 80 was from an unknown lad named John Sain. I think he was with some haymow league in Arkansas, Class D.

"Anyhow, the letter read, 'I'm not important. But you've treated me fine and I don't think the Detroit club did anything very wrong. So, if you'd like me to sign on again, at no extra cost, I'm willing . . .' Something like that!"

Zeller said he didn't know the kid and let the matter drop without reply. Then last winter, Jack signed with the Braves, and went south to spring training at Ft. Lauderdale. "I see this big, dark, raw-boned right-hander," says Jack, and I ask, "Who's he?" and they say, John Sain. So a little bell tinkles in my memory and I think, 'Sain? . . . Sain? . . . Oh, yes!'—the letter-writing kid from Arkansas. Then I think, except for a twist of luck, he'd be with the Detroit Tigers, and HOW they could use him."

EVEN SO, BUT FOR THE grace of Lady Luck, Sain might not be here to plug the Braves' pitching leak. Late in the 1942 season he left Boston to become a Navy flying instructor at Corpus Christi, Texas, where he was also the ace pitcher. So this particular period Johnny was polishing a young cadet for the final mysteries of solo flying. The kid was ready for his wings on the Saturday that the Corpus team was scheduled to fly in a big bomber to Pensacola to play the big objective game.

But, being serious minded, Sain volunteered to stay behind and see the cadet through his final test and then pilot a small plane to the game, which he did, arriving in time to pitch and win. Then he flew his SMJ-3 back to Texas, landing safely and learned that the transport had crashed, bringing death to one and serious injuries to almost all his teammates.

The moral is that Johnny's devotion to duty saved him from being seriously hurt and perhaps ending his baseball career, if nothing worse.

A courteous and affable type as a rule, Sain becomes silent and moody on mornings before he is to pitch. At such times he resembles the dark velvet, teeth-gritting type that was once Lefty Grove. The focal beam of his concentration is directed on one thing—how he will pitch to the opposition. Don't disturb his mental audit unless you want a surly snarl. At such times he's anti-social.

This cold and blustery Spring he had a slow start. Afflicted with sinus, the raw weather caused his head to feel like a peanut roaster. But he didn't say much and took his regular turn. Maybe you remember his opening 3-2 loss against Brooklyn, the day Earl Torgeson had such a miserable time. Yet, that evening, when some of the newsmen commiserated with Johnny, he said, "It wasn't Torgy's fault. I just didn't have my stuff." Characteristic!

Mrs. Sain is a former Army air post secretary of superior intelligence who answers Johnny's large fan mail. She also exhorts Johnny to polish up his public speaking, in which he is the diffident, mumbling sort. So last Winter, after Mr. and Mrs. Johnny came to Boston for the ball writers' dinner, Prexy Lou Perini invited them as his guests to the Wellesley Booster banquet.

During the auto ride to the town Mrs. Sain gave Johnny a high pressure pep talk about his forthcoming speech, exhorting him with wifely enthusiasm while John listened glum and mum. But when the time came for Johnny's speech, the toastmaster suddenly called on Mrs. Sain as John's substitute. Yeh! You guessed it! In her startled surprise, the Missus' larynx froze. She couldn't say a word!

Dodgers Facing Another Critical Pennant Problem

By BILL GRIMES

It was just about this time a year ago that the St. Louis Cardinals began to overhaul the Brooklyn Dodgers. Will history repeat itself? During the last jaunt through the West, the Dodgers were hotter than the weather. They swept through the Reds, Pirates and Cards. When they pulled out of the Mound City for Chicago, they were 10 games out in front of the world's champions.

Then, things began to take a turn for the worst. Possibly, the "Bums" developed a superiority complex, while winning 13 straight. Or, they might have been victims of a let down after sweeping the series with St. Louis. Regardless of the cause of their reversal of form, the Dodgers blew three straight to the Cubs, whom they regarded as "cousins" and now they've dropped two out of three to the Braves.

On paper, the Dodgers, man for man, are not in the same class as the Cardinals. But, they've been the pacemakers, or within reaching distance of first place all season. They are poison at Ebbetts Field and they were bad news to Pittsburgh, Cincinnati and St. Louis on the last Western trip.

Starting tomorrow night, when they meet the Blue Jays of Philadelphia, at Ebbetts Field, the Dodgers will be home for a week, winding up the stay with the Braves. Then, after a three-day four-game series in the Quaker City, the "Bums" will return to Flatbush until Sept. 1.

And, the Dodgers had better make the most of this long home stay for during the last month of the season, the Cardinals has 16 playing days scheduled at Sportsmans Park.

The Cardinals are rolling. They have come up off the floor, following no less than 51 days in the cellar. They are the class of the league. And, if they had been "given their heads," they'd have been into contentions weeks before they did.

Eddie Dyer was the miracle man of 1946. But, now the fans are almost convinced that he rode to fame on the crest of a Southworth wave. He has been making his share of mistakes all this year. And, moreover, he's no longer getting away with his Kiwanis Club talks, with his players. The concensus is that the Cards will wil in spite of Dyer. If they don't, it will be a miscarriage of justice, for the truth of the matter is that they are the only club in the league worthy of being classified as a major league team.

The Braves have a chance to help the Cardinals and, of course, themselves, this afternoon in the windup game of the Brooklyn series. They went down to ten defeats in 16 games on their last trip. With the exception of Johnny Sain, the pitchers flopped and the club as a whole wasn't even a reasonable facsimile of the early season Braves.

Upon their return to Braves Field, the Tribe was in danger of being eased out of the first division. But, now that they've taken two out of three from Brooklyn, some of the pressure has been removed.

Three out of four from the Dodgers will give the Braves morale a shot in the arm for the coming series in New York and Brooklyn.

Lehner Suspended By Mgr. Ruel Again

ST. LOUIS, Aug. 7 (AP)—Mgr. Herold (Muddy) Ruel last night fined rookie Paul Lehner an undisclosed sum and suspended the 27-year-old St. Louis Browns' outfielder indefinitely without pay.

The penalty climaxed the third incident involving Lehner in recent weeks. He did not report for Tuesday night's game with the Chicago White Sox and yesterday told reporters he was displeased with paycheck deduction for previous fines.

Red Barrett to Face Dodgers; Shotten May Use Branca

Charlie "Red" Barrett, who was to have pitched the opening game of this series but was sidetracked in favor of Bill Voiselle, will be on the mound this afternoon in the some fine games against the Dodgfourth and final contest with the Dodgers. Barrett has pitched ers and if he's right today, he'll give them trouble.

Manager Burt Shotten of the Dodgers refused to announce whether he would give the nod to Ralph Branca, his ace righthander, or Harry Taylor, the rookie, who has been a valuable asset to the Bums this season.

Due to the fact that the Boys from Flatbush have now dropped five out of their last six games, the Tribe will be wise to expect to face Mr. Branca, the former NYU star this afternoon.

Bob Elliott hasn't had much success with his war club in this series. His lone hit, however, in 12 official times at bat was a three run homer, which won last night's game for Warren Spahn. Bob's RBI to date is 75 and unless he breaks a leg he will bat in more than 100 runs this season.

After four unsuccessful bids to chalk up his 14th victory of the year, Warren Spahn finally made it last night. For some unknown reason, Spahn loses his "stuff" late in games. He held the Dodgers to three hits for six rounds last night. Then, they jumped on him for four straight hits, which coupled with an error netted them three runs.

Nanny Fernandez, along with driving in two runs in the third frame, came up with two grand defensive plays. There's no telling what might have happened in the Dodgers' big 7th, if Nanny hadn't made a great play on Dixie Walker's wicked grounder, which had base hit written all over it, and retired the side.

"Pistol Pete" Reiser, who has only recently returned to the Dodgers lineup was forced out of the game in the 4th inning, due to illness. It was obvious that Pete wasn't himself when he failed to get to Warren Spahn's three-bagger and Danny Litwhiler's double.

Hank Camelli has started all three games against the Dodgers behind the bat. And, the Braves haven't lost a game in this series while the Milford star was doing the receiving. Camelli is not only a very smart catcher but he will not allow his pitchers to ease up. He makes them pitch all the way and that is the reason he has moved into the No. 1 catcher's job.

The Braves will be on their way to New York after today's game.

Jockey Rogers Loses on 10 Straight Favorites

By DAVE WILSON

In case anybody is interested in statistics, Jockey Chris Rogers has been beaten on 10 consecutive betting favorites at Suffolk Downs. The last time the Canadian rider found his way into the winner's circle with a favorite was on July 21 when he drove home Blue Yonder at odds of 2 to 5 . . . Trainer Herb Fisher has engaged Gigi Moore to pilot Irving Gushen's Andy's Glory in Saturday's $25,000 Mayflower Stakes.

Dart By and Chain, a pair of nominees for Saturday's Mayflower Stakes belonging to the Brookmeade Stable, worked six furlongs in 1:14 in preparation for the six-furlong feature . . . Jose Marrero, another Cuban jockey, arrived at Suffolk Downs yesterday to augment the Latin contingent of riders which is beginning to take on the form of a convention . . . Bryan Field, the head-man at Delaware Park, was a visitor at the Downs yesterday afternoon.

Speed chart handicappers favor Romanette's chances in Saturday's Mayflower Stakes on the strength of her recent triumph in fast time. On the other hand, clockers are legion in their support of Andys Glory which recently worked six furlongs in 1:12 1-5 . . . The stabling area at Suffolk Downs will be kept open to care for the overflow of horses at the forthcoming Rockingham Park session . . . The Greentree Stable's Witch Hunt, who finished third to My Request and Royal Blood in the Juvenile Stakes on May 17 at Belmont Park, arrived yesterday at Suffolk Downs to await the Mayflower Stakes.

Max Forst, the well-known New York sportsman, is a daily visitor at Suffolk Downs . . . Vice President Domonic Lobraco reports that Uncle Lou Smith, the popular track head of Rockingham Park, was looking out the window when Lou Smith, the boss, won last Tuesday at Suffolk Downs . . . Mrs. Helen Sagner's stable will depart for Saratoga at the conclusion of Saturday's racing . . .

The 11-year-old gelding Remolee, who is currently campaigning at Suffolk Downs, has won a total of 46 races during his career which may or may not be some sort of a record . . . Fernando Fernandez will be astride the Brookmeade Stable's Chain in Saturday's Mayflower Stakes.

Cards Roaring From Behind as Dodgers Slip

By JOE REICHLER

Associated Press Sports Writer

The frantic Brooklyn citizenry was wondering today whether the coroner would supply an affidavit to the effect that the current Dodger "corpus delicti," which has dropped five of its last six games, is the same very much alive body which boasted a 10-game lead only a week ago.

Last night the Boston Braves made it two out of three with a 7-3 victory over the Brooks, the very same bunch who entered St. Louis last week with a seven game lead and walloped the runner-up Cards three straight times to apparently sew up the National League flag.

The Flatbush faithful is finding it almost impossible to believe that this tired looking ball club which has seen its once mountainous lead cut exactly in half is the same scrappy Dodger outfit that blew a 10-0 lead to the Cards and had the guts to bounce back and win that game in extra innings.

While Brooklyn has been getting belted three straight times in Chicago and twice in three starts in Boston, the Redbirds have roared back with six straight victories including last night's 6-3 win over Cincinnati, to trail by five games. The Dodgers definitely are in a tough spot now despite the fact that they come home tomorrow following the series finale with Boston.

While the Brooks boast a five-game bulge, actually they lead by only three in the losing column, the side to be watched from now on. They've played four games more than the Cards. Of their 49 remaining games, 25 are with the contending clubs — the Cards, Braves and New York Giants — nine more with the third-place Giants, eight with the fourth-place Braves and seven with the Cards. Obviously, this interplay will have a great deal to do with deciding the champion.

The Cards jumped off to an early 6-1 lead on homers by Terry Moore and Stan Musial, then staved off a ninth-inning Red rally which fell three runs short. Little Murry Dickson spaced nine hits for his eighth victory. He has lost 11.

Warrant for Man Who Ran 'Ringer' at Pimlico

BALTIMORE, Aug. 7 (AP)—A bench warrent was issued here last night for the arrest of James S. O'Donnell, Washington resident who failed to appear to begin a two-year sentence for running a "ringer" at Pimlico.

Roland E. Sanner, College Park, convicted along with O'Donnell, surrendered Tuesday, to start an 18-month term in the Maryland house of correction.

Judge E. Paul Mason of the Baltimore city court issued the warrant for O'Donnell when Asst. State Atty. Alan H. Murrell told the court O'Donnell could not be found at his home.

Dennie Galehouse Will Try To Salvage Final Senator Tilt

WASHINGTON, Aug. 7—Denny Galehouse has been nominated by Mgr. Joe Cronin to attempt to salvage the final game with the Washington Senators here this afternoon. Opposed to the veteran right-hander will be Early Wynn who boasts a 12-9 record. Galehouse has a 6-6 mark to date.

Cronin is anxious to save Hughson, Ferriss and Dobson for the Boston series with the Yankees. Consequently it is strictly up to Dennie to carry on today. Defeating this clever Wynn is no simple task as the Red Sox are likely to learn before the afternoon is over.

Regardless of how they are achieved, record books tabulate defeats for just that—defeats. Yet it was purely a crime that Earl Johnson should drop last night's game to the Senators 1-0. The cool left-hander allowed only two hits in seven innings. Mickey Harris, who took over for Earl after the latter gave way to Culberson as a pinch hitter in the eighth, held the home forces hitless.

So there you are. The Sox lose a two-hit ball game against a pretty nifty left-hander, the 34-year-old Mickey Haefner who gave up five hits. Mickey served nothing but balloon balls to the Sox all evening. Except for Johnny Pesky, who grabbed himself two hits, the Boston boys could do nothing against Mickey.

Of all the men to err none else than Bobby Doerr contributed the first inning bad throw that led to the first Washington run. This was enough to win the ball game.

Doerr had made a fine stop of a tricky grounder from Ed Yost. But he threw low to Jake Jones, Yost reaching first on the hit and going to second on the overthrow. Buddy Lewis dropped a bunt down the first base line and Yost went to third.

Tom McBride then hit into a double play but Yost scored.

Haefner has won four straight for the Senators giving up only two runs while operating. Williams went four for nothing and fanned twice to the delight of the home fans.

West Roxbury and Linehan clubs were halted in their attempts to sweep the opening series of the Park League playoffs last night when West Roxbury was nipped 4-2 at Fallon Field by a fighting Hyde Square Post, and Linehan Club bowed to '46 champion Vets Administration at South Boston Stadium.

Dick Casey came back with a vengeance at Smith Field where the seven-time champions smacked Artosani Club 10-2, with Frankie Catarius again leading the batting attack, to give the Caseys a 2-1 edge in games, while Boston Giants lost to Gould Oil on a forfeit, at Carter Field, when the Giants used an ineligible player.

Agganis and Keany Carry N. E. Hopes in Hearst Finals

Two New England sandlot baseball players, Harry Agganis, Lynn, and Walter "Huck" Keany, Dedham, left for New York this morning to compete in the most important baseball game of their young careers. The boys, named by the Record-American-Sunday Advertiser, as the two most outstanding sandlotters in New England, will play in the Hearst National Sandlot finals at the Polo Grounds on the night of Aug. 13.

The Hearst sandlot classic is the greatest game ever offered to sandlot baseball talent. Two delegates will make the trip to New York from the 12 cities throughout the country. Ball players will come from distant places as Los Angeles, San Francisco, San Antonio, Chicago and other cities.

This United States squad, coached by Oscar Vitt, Ray Schalk and Honus Wagner, will play against Rabbit Maranville's New York Journal American All Stars.

Agganis, 18, a first baseman, and Keany, 17, a third baseman, will both play with the Hearst U. S. All Stars.

The two New England boys were selected to the coveted berths after they played some of the greatest baseball of their lives in the Hearst New England final at Fenway Park in the recent title game.

All-Star Scrimmage Ordered by Frank Leahy

EVANSTON, Ill., Aug. 7 (AP)—Five more players joined the squad of College All-Stars yesterday to swell the total to 43 men on the roster of collegians who will meet the Chicago Bears, National Football League champions, in Soldier Field the night of Aug. 22.

New arrivals were: Ed (Buckets) Hirsch, fullback, Northwestern; Joe Kodva, center, Purdue; George Ratterman, quarterback, Notre Dame; Ernie Case, quarterback, UCLA, and Julie Rykovich, halfback, Illinois.

Ben Raimondi, quarterback, Indiana, and Claude (Buddy) Young, halfback, Illinois, were expected to arrive late tonight.

Head Coach Frank Leahy said the first team scrimmages would be held today.

Officials to Study Problems of Duck Decline

By "TAP" GOODENOUGH

With the duck hunting seasons dates just announced, local gunners should be interested to know that Albert M. Day, Director of the U. S. Fish and Wildlife Service, stated that this organization is taking steps to study the peculiar problems of Eastern ducks and is keeping track of their population trends.

In a conference this week with Fish and Game Director Ralph Carpenter, 2nd, of New Hampshire, Mr. Day also added that this new program was being stepped up throughout the nation, with special emphasis on the East and Canadian breeding grounds. Key men have been placed at strategic spots to make scientific studies.

Among other subjects discussed at the meeting were the current critical decline in waterfowl populations and resulting restrictions in the 1947 gunning seasons. Federal aid projects now in execution in New Hampshire to devise ways of improving duck habitat were considered, as well.

"Owing to the floods over the breeding grounds in Canada, plus a late season which left many of the usual breeding grounds frozen long after late nesting dates, duck breeding populations in those areas has been sharply cut during the past two springs, causing a serious curtailment of the breeding potential and a critical shortage along the Atlantic flyway," explained Director Day.

Day emphasized that as the impact of civilization in the form of mosquito control, of marshes, agricultural and industrial development, and many others, had slashed breeding sites along the Atlantic seaboard, the birds had been shoved further and further north to do their nesting. Thus, they are now squeezed between a flooded and frozen Canadian wilderness and an over-civilized southern New England; hence, the importance of New Hampshire as a breeding location is soaring.

ANGLING ANGLES: "Plenty of good catches of striped bass!" is the word from Orleans and Wellfleet, where both boatsmen and surf casters have been hooking fish . . . Ronald Garceau, 15-year-old angler of Claremont, N. H., recently caught a 14½-pound Northern Pike in the Connecticut river, just above the Ascutney bridge. Taken with a daredevil, the fish measured 39½ inches. Good one!

The trout season is over in the Bay State, but a friend comes forth with a tale of fishing in a North Reading pond . . . Seems that he was rowing two sportsmen about the pond, each of whom were equipped to the nth degree—complete with new tackle and boxes crammed with scores of assorted flies and streamers. After trying every lure they had, without a strike, they suggested that he take a whack at the sport. He did—and boated a big brown trout on the first cast—with a worm! . . . Now you tell one!

Yanks Have Star Center

DANVERS, Aug. 7—Great centers in the National Football League have had plenty of heft as well as ability when you remember Mel Hein, Ky Aldrich and Bulldog Turner. With this as a precedent, the Boston Yanks have a freshman pivot in 242-pound Bill Godwin who promises to eventually work his way into the famed circle.

Godwin is no Johnny-come-lately nor is he a big guy trying to make good. For two years he has been the most sought-after center in professional football ranks and with just cause.

Look at his record:

First string center at Georgia in 1941, the Orange Bowl club.

First string center at Georgia in 1942, the Rose Bowl outfit.

First string center for the Fort Pierce Amphibs in 1944 and 1945, one of the finest service teams in the country.

And here is the best proof of all—last year. Bill was named first string center on the All-Star team in Chicago over Bill Blackburn, Rice; Jack Tavener, Indiana; Merv Pregulman, Michigan; and Herb Coleman, Notre Dame. Blackburn later that same year was a freshman sensation with the Chicago Cardinals and the other three were All-America centers in 1945.

Godwin played 46 minutes against the Rams in that All-Star clash and was voted the outstanding lineman on the field.

So, it's little wonder that the Yanks officials are delighted over securing the giant from Blytheville, Arkansas.

Scituate Meet Has Big Entry

Twenty-four more entries have just been received for the swim meet to be held at the Scituate Harbor Yacht Club on Sunday afternoon. The meet will be another of the many swim meets sponsored by the Boston Record-American-Sunday Advertiser.

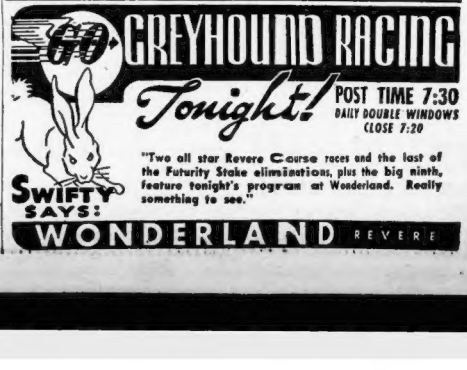
Four new names were added to the list of competitors for the NEAAU senior women's 100-meter freestyle championship. The four added starters are: Barbara Donaghey, Winchester; Bevery Gay, Winchester S. C.; Marion Senior and Louise Sherlock, Wanskuck S. C., Providence.

Some of the other new entrants are: Marge Carroll, Sally Morgan, Lynn Aitkens, Bob McGrath, Wimpy Burtnett, John Power, Lou Brown, Tom McGowan, Winchester, S. C.; Jean and Joan Senior, Joe Prata, Dan Prescott, Wanskuck S. C.; Jim Phelan, unattached from Providence; Joe Michalczyk, Rosaire Nicole, Pawtucket; Kerry Donovan, Vasili Bellini and Milton Brier, Providence; Joe Watmough, unattached, Providence.

Nashua Falls Before Portland Pilots, 7-1

NASHUA, N. H., Aug. 7 (AP)—The second place Nashua Dodgers, held to five hits by Bob Tanner and creaking badly with four errors, lost a 7-1 New England League game last night to the sixth place Portland Pilots.

Only two of the home team's hits went for more than one base. One was a scraggly triple, the other a double.



Lesnevich Vacationing, Won't Tackle Heavies

By JACK CONWAY

The world's light heavyweight champion, Gus Lesnevich, arrived at Green Harbor today, accompanied by Mrs. Lesnevich, for a two weeks' vacation. Lesnevich recently defeated Tami Mauriello in a bout in New York.

"I have no intention of invading the heavyweight division," said Lesnovich. "I find that when I weigh over 180 pounds, I lose my speed. It is my plan to remain in the light heavyweight class. Before the end of the year I'll defend my title against Freddie Miller of England, and Jake LaMotta, or Ezzard Charles.

"I am now 31, but I feel as well as when I was 21. I think this is due the fine condition I attained while in the Coast Guard during the war.

"I do not believe Joe Louis is in any danger of losing his championship, and I expert him to defeat any of the present contenders.

"The best looking heavyweight prospect is a youngster from Fairfield, Ct., named Bernie Reynolds. He is 21 years of age and weighs 180. However, he is growing rapidly and will put on additional weight. He will be ready to fight Louis in one-and-one-half years—if Joe has not retired undefeated by that time."

Lesnevich said that while he is at Green Harbor, he plans to play some golf on the South Shore courses, and he hopes he will come up with some winners at the Marshfield Fair, which opens a running horse meeting a week from Monday.

Surprising Hoot Mon Very Costly

By SID FEDER

GOSHEN, N. Y., Aug. 7 (AP)—Around the race track, they used to say, "Money can't buy a champ."

As a result of the derby doings this year—running the trotting both—there is now a slight switch in the old gag.

It now reads:

"Money can't buy a champ—but it helps."

Mrs. Elizabeth (Arden) Graham, the lipstick princess, has been tossing her cosmetics coin around the running horse sales in large chunks for several seasons now. And this year she finally got the necklace of roses in Kentucky with Jet Pilot, a little number for whom she'd laid a mere $41,000 on the line.

Yesterday in the trotter's derby—the Hambletonian—Mr. and Mrs. James B. Johnson, who breed the sulky-pullers on their Lexington, Ky., farm and show horses on their Rochester, Mich., acres, came up with Hoot Mon, who'd only cost them $50,000 a year ago, as their hope to finally bring their colors home.

Hoot Mon was the highest-priced gee-gee ever to run in a Hambletonian. And he not only meandered home in front of the Dixie flyer, red hot Rodney, in two out of three heats, but he ran the fastest Hambletonian of them all—a mile in two minutes flat—to do it. It wasn't only a Hambletonian record, in fact, but equalled Greyhound's mark for the fastest time ever posted in a race in all trotting history.

Down Under Court Stars in Nationals

The entry list for the U. S. National Doubles championship to be held at Longwood August 18 through August 23 was further swelled yesterday when applications were received from O. William Sidwell of Australia paired with Roland McKenzie of New Zealand, and the American team of Seymour Greenberg and Victor Seixas.

turn their names over to the police or other prosecuting authorities."

Long estimated the annual yield from illegal gambling in the Bay State alone at $17,000,000 and assured that he would not so much as lift a little finger to stop it, so long as the State gets its share of about $500,000 a year.

"I could not estimate the number of big shot gamblers operating in Boston, but they are not many. Three outstanding lawyers handle all their tax returns. So long as the State collects the taxes, I'm no longer interested. But if they try to evade the tax, then I go after them.

"I have no interest in putting bookies out of business and forcing Massachusetts bettors to place their bets outside the Commonwealth. I don't want to drive money out of Massachusetts. Gambling is universal and I am collecting the taxes on it whether the money is holy money or unholy money.

"Outlawing of gambling will not stop the people from betting. As long as I am tax commissioner, it is my duty to collect the State's share of the winnings, without being an informer.

"Four big bookies in the Connecticut Valley who have been doing a business of $2,000,000 a year would not swing into line and pay the State tax of 3 per cent of their winnings. We are getting after them."

Meanwhile, Police Commr. Sullivan's complaint that the courts are not jailing the bet-takers drew a reply from Municipal court attaches that the lower courts are not unwilling to impose sentences.
